London Circles Refuse To Blame Ally For Giving Up One-Sided War

LONDON, June 17—The British Empire will continue to fight Nazi Germany to the last, despite decision of France to sue for peace, according to the Press Association, officially-designated British news service.

The diplomatic correspondent of this organization wrote:

"It is learned that the statement issued last night that Great Britain is firmly and resolutely determined to continue the struggle until victory has been won still expresses the opinion of the British government.

"It is the unshakable determination of the British government and the British empire to continue the struggle.

"An authoritative statement being issued tonight will reiterate Britain's determination to continue."

Great Britain today accepted as "tragic but inevitable" the decision of Marshal Henri Petain of France to sue for peace.

Every indication pointed to determination by this country to fight on alone, but authorities said that the status of the French navy would be a question of major importance in Britain's decision.

Elucidation of this point is being earnestly sought, it was said.

Meanwhile, certain reputable quarters expressed conviction that Germany's next move will be a peace offensive directed toward Great Britain and that such a move might conceivably be made through the United States.

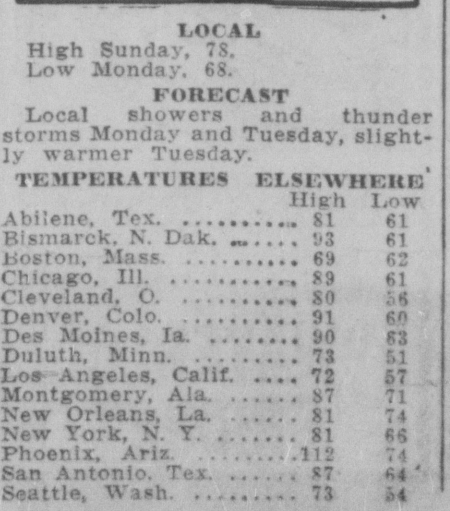

The government set about preparing a formal statement to the world on the British attitude in face of the French decision.

In competent quarters, there was not the slightest attempt to blame the French for their stand. It was realized and agreed that the French put up the bravest sort of fight against terrible odds and only utter exhaustion compelled today's decisions.

Two U. S. Army Bombers Hit In Mid-Air; 11 Victims In Nation's Service

NEW YORK, June 17—At least 12 persons met death today when two army bombers flying from Mitchell Field, locked wings over Queens Village, Long Island, and crashed in flames.

At least 11 of those who perished were army pilots or enlisted men of the U. S. air force.

Flaming plane parts crashing down on three homes in the suburban village partially demolished one, and a mother and her two children were burned, perhaps fatally.

The army pilots were identified as:

- Lieut. Paul Burlingame, former West Point football star.
- Lieut. J. F. Dow, Hulpin, Me.
- Lieut. H. P. Bedent, Wilson Point, N. Y.

CUSTER RETURNS TO POSITION IN SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Sheriff Charles Radcliff announced Monday that he had appointed Bryan J. Custer, 143 West Franklin Street, as a deputy in his office to fill the vacancy left by acceptance by Miller Fissell of the city police department's traffic patrolman post.

Custer started to work Monday. The sheriff's office has operated for the last few months without a deputy in Fissell's place, other members of the sheriff's staff doubling up their work.

Custer is not new in the sheriff's office, having served as Sheriff Radcliff's chief deputy until he resigned to become a deputy United States marshal under Marshal Kenneth Kerr. Both Custer and Kerr have since left the U. S. office. During the last few months the new deputy has been working as a salesman for Stanley Beckett, automobile and tractor dealer.

The sheriff's office is now comprised of Radcliff, Chief Deputy Earl Weaver, Robert Armstrong and Custer, with Court Bailiff Robert Adkins also aiding when the necessity arises.

SOVIET TAKES NEW STEPS IN BALKANS

LONDON, June 17—Russian troops began marching into Latvia and Estonia at 6 a. m. today, and other Soviet soldiers still are pouring into Lithuania, an Exchange Telegraph report from Helsinki said today.

In Lithuania, two thousand tanks already have arrived at the German frontier, accompanied by huge oil stores, and all strategically important points are occupied, the Exchange report said.

(Dispatches received in Rome said Russian troops already had begun entering Estonia and were preparing to enter Latvia.)

RIGA, June 17—The Latvian Government resigned today following receipt of a Soviet Russian ultimatum demanding military control of the country.

MOSCOW, June 17—The Soviet Government announced in an official communique today that both Latvia and Estonia have accepted new demands presented by the Russian Government.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A German DNB agency dispatch from Riga said that Soviet troops crossed the Latvian border early this morning and sent a dozen warships into the harbor of Riga.)

The demands, it was stated, included reinforcement of the Soviet military garrisons in both countries and appointment of Latvia and Estonian governments capable of ensuring "honest implementation" of their mutual assistance pacts with the USSR.

The communique said existence of a mutual assistance pact among Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania directed against the USSR menaced the security of Russian frontiers and was "impermissible and unbearable."

Previously Soviet Russia, following acceptance by Lithuania of a Russian ultimatum, greatly increased her military force occupying that country.

(A Reuters dispatch from Kaunas stated that M. Paleckis, author, was named Premier and Prof. Kreve Micevicius, vice premier and foreign minister in a new Lithuanian "Peoples Government" friendly to the Soviet Union. No members of the new government are Communists, but all are "left-wing patriots," Reuters said.)

Transfer To Nazi Ownership Would Be Direct Violation Of Monroe Doctrine

WASHINGTON, June 17—American officials anxiously pondered the fate of the formidable French navy and the French colonies in the new world as they learned today that France will sue for peace with Germany.

At the State Department, it was announced that no word of the French decision to abandon the losing fight against the Nazi legions had been received from American diplomats abroad.

Officials cherished the hope that by some "eleventh-hour" miracle France might even now stem the grey tide sweeping southward through her country. But it was a hope—not a belief. The resignation last night of the fighting premier, Paul Reynaud, seemed to them to foretell the end of the French struggle on land and in the air.

However much the sympathy of the American government is flowing toward France, the official attitude is that President Roosevelt's realistic message to Reynaud on Saturday reached the zenith of plausible American promises. Supplies to the limit, the President offered, but no military aid. He said he has neither soldiers, tanks or planes to send immediately—nor the constitutional power to order them to France if they were available.

As a member of the resolutions committee meeting this afternoon, Landon also said he would urge sending supplies to the Allies.

WASHINGTON, June 17—The administration today proposed a new $1,200,000,000 naval building program which would expand the present and authorized strength of the navy by 22 percent, thus making it by far the largest navy in the world.

Announcing that developments in the international situation makes the huge new program imperative, Sen. Walsh (D) Mass., and Rep. Vinson (D) Ga., chairman, respectively, of senate and house naval affairs committees, introduced identical bills authorizing the program.

The proposed program would authorize building of 84 new ships including three aircraft carriers, 12 cruisers, 41 destroyers and 23 submarines.

"World conditions make it imperative that we build up the navy as rapidly as possible," said Vinson.

"We must get this bill through before adjournment. I hope it will pass this week. Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, will testify before our committee tomorrow."

The announcement of the new program followed action of President Roosevelt today in signing the Vinson-Walsh bill which authorized an 11 percent increase in existing naval tonnage and the Vinson bill authorizing a minimum of 10,000 naval airplanes, training of 16,000 pilots and expenditure of $144,320,000 for construction of naval air bases.

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's Field Headquarters in France, June 17—Formal announcement that France has laid down its arms and asked for peace was made by the German high command today.

A special communique said:

"Marshal Petain (Premier Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain of France) announced in a broadcast to the people of his country that France has been forced to lay down its arms.

"He has now mentioned the step already undertaken by him to inform the Reich Government of his decision and his desire to learn the conditions under which the German Reich is ready to comply with the French wishes.

"The Fuehrer will meet the Italian Premier Mussolini to discuss and examine the attitude of both countries."

BORDEAUX, France, June 17—Hopelessly battered by an overwhelming foe, the Republic of France sought an honorable peace today.

Pending a reply to the offer, the French high command ordered cessation of hostilities.

The task of bringing an end to the slaughter that has drenched half of France in blood fell to Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain.

The new premier of France unhesitatingly accepted his sad and difficult mission.

The Spanish ambassador to France, Jose Felix De La Querica, was reported named as intermediary to communicate Adolf Hitler's terms to Marshal Petain.

According to news in Bordeaux, remnants of the French army were reported still fighting against hopeless odds over a wide and scattered front.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A broadcast attributed to Petain and picked up in both London and New York quoted him as saying that hostilities have already ceased.)

Thus for the third time in his life of 84 years, Petain was charged with a historic mission.

"Premier Reynaud submitted the collective resignation of the entire cabinet. A new government immediately was constituted under Marshal Petain."

Weyand Vice President

"General Maxime Weyand was named vice president of the council and charged with national defense. General Louis Colson was named minister of war and General Bertrand Pujol, minister of air."

The communique listed these additional members of the new cabinet:

- Minister of marine—Admiral Jean Darlan.
- Minister of interior—Adrian Marquet.
- Minister of justice—Pierre Laval.
- Foreign minister—Paul Baudouin.
- Minister of finance—Marcel Bouthillier.

"Also among members of the new government," said the announcement, "are Admiral Abrial, Paul Faure, Jean Ybarnegaray, Georges Bonnet, Pierre Etienne Flandin, Louis-Oscar Frossard and Camille Chautemps, whose portfolios have not been determined."

"Jules Jeanneney, president of the senate, and Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies, resigned."

Earlier it was reported that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill was in Bordeaux, trying to convince French authorities that Britain can produce support to carry on the war.

The French council of ministers also heavily weighed in its deliberations President Roosevelt's promise of "all assistance short of war."

Within 48 hours the council of ministers held five emergency sessions and it was known they took into the most serious consideration the statement made Friday by an official military spokesman of France's dire lack of equipment with which to face the mechanized German forces.

FRANCE'S FALL ADDS PROBLEM FOR UNCLE SAM

Question of Disposition of Fleet Important; Several Alternatives Discussed

French fleet—second only to the British in Europe and the fourth strongest in the world—might fall into Hitler's hands. Although Germany is formidable on land and in the air, it ranks sixth or seventh among the nations (depending on the position assigned Soviet Russia) as a sea power.

Acquisition of the French fleet would greatly strengthen the Reich's striking force against the Western Hemisphere. More immediately, it would give Germany and Italy together sea power approximating that of Great Britain and would vastly increase their chances of defeating the British Empire.

According to latest available figures, France has (not counting recently-launched vessels not included in official tables) six battleships, two aircraft carriers, 18 cruisers, 70 destroyers and 72 submarines. Many of the French destroyers are of modern construction, capable of speeds between 35 and 40 knots.

If France is forced to surrender on land, three alternatives were believed possible should the French refuse to give up their fleet. These were: (1) scuttle it, as the Germans did their ships at the end of the first world war; (2) instruct fleet commanders to keep up the war at sea, taking orders from the British admiralty and depending on Britain for bases and supplies, or (3) turn the fleet over without condition to Great Britain.

Reports from London implied that the British government assumed that regardless of what happened to the French army, the navy would continue in the war. This led to the belief in Washington that some understanding regarding the fleet already may have been reached between French leaders and Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The surrender of France also would raise the delicate question of sovereignty over French possessions in the Americas—St. Pierre, Miquelon, Martinique and French Guiana. Should Hitler lay claim to these, it would place Germany in direct conflict with United States policy. The transfer of sovereignty over European possessions in the Americas would be regarded as a patent violation of the Monroe Doctrine. A resolution stating America's policy on this question even more strongly than did President Monroe now is pending in congress. It has the announced support of the administration.

Famous Sons Join Famous Dads

William L. White

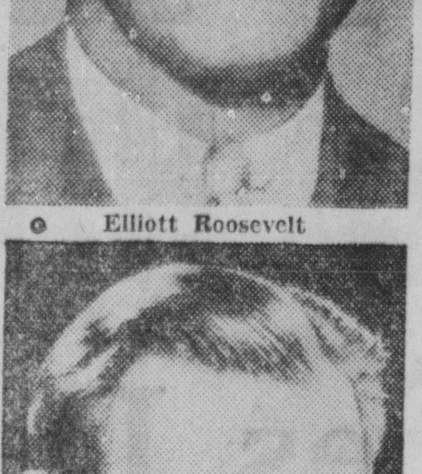

Francis S. Hutchins

Herbert Hoover, Jr.

Elliott Roosevelt

Nelson R. Rockefeller

THE new 1940-41 edition of Who's Who in America has included for the first time these famous sons of famous fathers. William L. White, son of William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette, recently returned to the United States from Europe where he spent several months writing a series of articles on the war. Francis S. Hutchins, who is a nephew of President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, succeeded his father as president of Berea College. Elliott Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover, Jr., a geophysicist, are sons of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and former President Herbert Hoover, respectively. Nelson A. Rockefeller represents the third generation of the Rockefeller family to be listed in Who's Who. Carter Glass, Jr., and Dr. Charles William Mayo, sons of famous fathers, also are listed this year for the first time.

PARIS RETURNS TO NORMALCY

old captured German battleflags were taken away by the French.

In the Court of Honor were motley groups of French Moroccan, Indo-Chinese, Tunisian, Hindu and Anamite prisoners of soldiers, some of them wounded and most of them so footsore they were unable to walk. They were picked up all around Paris.

The city itself is under the administration of Military Governor General Dentz who remained, consequently, the municipal services, including the light, water and sanitary departments are functioning well.

During Saturday, for example, the major German problem was how to handle the enormous number of French prisoners falling in to their hands.

Amidst all of this came a couple of French soldiers from the south Paris region to inform them they had been dispatched by their division to take General Von Stunditz, who took command of Paris, that they had thrown away their guns and were going in with their hands up.

The only thing to do was to divert a huge stream of men around the city to avoid congestions.

I saw a small German patrol half a carload of French officers, fully armed, near the Rue De Rivoli, and disarm them.

The bewildered Frenchmen said they were part of a garrison driving home for lunch.

In fact, the German occupation came so quickly that it left Paris-

ians speechless, and just now are they coming slowly out of their daze, or hide-outs.

They are beginning to feel firsthand the precise discipline of the German troops.

Soon after the first German troops reached the Champs Elysees, two Fieseler Storch planes landed in the Place De La Concorde, and out stepped the high command liaison Colonel Warlimont who greeted General Von Stunditz.

Colonel Warlimont then stood in front of the obelisk and watched the first divisions pursuing the French file past him.

The American military attaché, Colonel Horace Fuller, and Naval Attaché Lieutenant Colonel Commander Roscoe Hillen-Koetter also were there, watching.

Previously, Ambassador Bullitt, acting as dean of the remnant of the diplomatic corps, paid a call on General Von Stunditz, and the German officer later returned the call.

The rest of the diplomats were summoned to the United States embassy and informed of the curfew, blackout and suspension of telegraphic communications.

Ambassador Bullitt has been treated by the Germans with all the monolithic politeness due his rank. In fact, on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, the dapper silk-hatted ambassador once again appeared at Hotel Crillon and requested further audience with General Von Stunditz.

The audience was granted, and also the privilege of occasional relay of embassy communications to Washington.

So far as I can see, Ambassador Bullitt seems to be astonished at the official courtesies shown him.

UNCLE SAM ACTS TO 'FREEZE' ALL FRENCH HOLDINGS

WASHINGTON, June 17—State and Treasury Department officials conferred with President Roosevelt today presumably in the first step in the government's expected move to freeze French financial credits in this country.

At the White House conference were Secretary of State Hull, Assistant Secretary Berle, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Under Secretary Bell.

At the same time, a spokesman for the Anglo-French military purchasing mission said "it would not be surprising if French orders for American airplanes and war materials would be taken over by the British."

A preliminary survey showed that French investments in the United States total in the neighborhood of $800,000,000, about half of which is in dollar balances. On top of this, it is believed that France has $500,000,000 in gold on deposit here.

FIVE EGYPTIANS KILLED IN RAIDS BY DUCE'S MEN

CAIRO, June 17—Five Egyptian soldiers were killed and nine wounded in four Italian air raids yesterday, a communique stated today.

The announcement said Sollum, Sidi Barrani and Mersa Matruh were bombed by Italian planes, Mersa Matruh undergoing two attacks.

At Mersa Matruh, it was reported, a 200-pound bomb exploded two feet from the entrance to a dugout where correspondents were taking shelter.

(A Reuters dispatch said Richard Mowrer of the Chicago Daily News was injured in the face and taken to a hospital. Other correspondents suffered abrasions when they were struck by falling masonry, Reuters reported.)

Announcement of the Italian raids came as the nation awaited a cabinet decision on what action to take regarding Italy as a result of the attack on Sollum on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier.

The ministers considered the possibility of a declaration of war after King Farouk conferred with Premier Aly Maher Pasha and War Minister Mohamed Saleh Harb Pasha. Later the premier and war minister conferred with Major General Wilson, commander of British forces in Egypt.

(An Exchange Telegraph dispatch said the Egyptian official view was that since the Sollum attack was directed against a police and not a military post, it did not constitute grounds for a declaration of war.)

POLING VERSUS SCHWIN COURT TRIAL ASSIGNED

Judge Meeker Terwilliger announced Monday that the case of Virgil E. Poling against Charles Schwin, Tarleton, will be heard before a jury Tuesday in Common Pleas Court.

In his suit against Schwin, administrator for the estate of Jasper Poling, his father, Poling claims that he and his father entered into a labor contract before his father's death, and that he is entitled to $2,325 payment for his services.

EIGHT OHIOANS DEAD IN HEAVY SUNDAY TRAFFIC

By International News Service

Eight Ohioans were injured fatally in automobile accidents over the week end, a survey disclosed today.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Altman, 38 and 35 respectively, of Columbus, were killed in a two-car collision in U. S. Route 40 near Reynoldsburg. Four other persons were injured, one critically.

Joseph Weber, 80, of Norwood, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile near his home.

In a collision of two automobiles in North Royalton three men and a woman were killed and four other persons injured. The dead: Peter Gorupac, 51; Mrs. Susan Stropel, 43; Anthony Tossman, 24, and George Yunch. All were Cleveland residents.

Miss Josephine Yeager, 69, of Akron, was injured fatally when a car she was in ran through a red light and crashed into another machine, according to police. They held the driver, William E. Buzzell, 48, of Akron, on a charge of manslaughter. Seven other persons were injured in the collision.

12 KNOWN DEAD AS PLANES FALL IN GOTHAM AREA

Clarification Of Several Questions To Be Aired By Churchill

baer, Hempstead, N. Y. Lieut. J. H. Habe, Lawrence, Kas.

Ambulances and police emergency squads sped to the locale of the crash and their members found five bodies sprawled grotesquely on one street and seven around the corner in another street. The twelfth body believed that of a spectator, was not immediately identified.

The bombers were part of a flight of four planes which were flying in close formation.

A telephone operator at Creedmore State Hospital eye-witnessed the crash.

"I saw four planes flying in formation," she said. "Suddenly, two of them came together and exploded in the air."

One pilot was still living when pulled from the wreckage of his plane but his neck was broken and he died a few minutes later.

MILES RODGERS' WIDOW DIES NEAR LAURELVILLE

Mrs. Lovis Ann Rodgers, 78, widow of Miles Rodgers died Sunday at 3:30 p. m. at the home of a son, George, near Laurelville, a heart attack proving fatal. Mrs. Rodgers was born August 24, 1861.

Surviving are four sons, Harley, Jacob, George and Lehman Rodgers and three daughters, Mrs. Odessa Congrove, Mrs. Mazie Waite and Mrs. Sarah Rutter, all of the Laurelville-Adelphi communities. There are also 25 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Dunkard Church near Laurelville with burial in the adjoining cemetery by Donald E. Whitsel, Kingston. Friends may view the body at the home of Mrs. Rutter.

SOVIET MOVES INTO BALKANS

Moscow said the German embassy notified the Russian government that President Smetona of Lithuania and several members of the Lithuanian government crossed the border into Germany on the night of June 16 and were interned in German territory.

(A Reuters (British) dispatch from Kaunas said Former Lithuanian Interior Minister Skucas and the chief of the political police both were arrested and will be court-martialed. The war minister, Gen. Musteikis, was reported dismissed and a curfew proclaimed.

(From Tallinn, Estonia, it was reported that the government at once accepted the Soviet ultimatum to "guarantee carrying out of the Soviet-Estonian mutual assistance pact." It stated Soviet troops will be centered at several new points and that hopes were expressed the populace would remain calm and show good will toward the troops when they arrive.)

U. S. PILOTS MAY FLY PLANES TO CANADIAN PORTS

WASHINGTON, June 17—The treasury ruled today that henceforth American airplanes may be flown across the Canadian border for delivery to the Allies with American pilots at the controls.

An opinion of the treasury's legal staff said that it would no longer be necessary to tow planes across the border.

The opinion stated that title to the aircraft could pass from American ownership to foreign ownership while in the air. One of the reasons for the action was that the airport at Houlton, Me., where airplanes released for the Allies are being delivered, is not large enough to accommodate military aircraft.

UNCLE SAM ACTS TO 'FREEZE' ALL FRENCH HOLDINGS

WASHINGTON, June 17—State and Treasury Department officials conferred with President Roosevelt today presumably in the first step in the government's expected move to freeze French financial credits in this country.

At the White House conference were Secretary of State Hull, Assistant Secretary Berle, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Under Secretary Bell.

At the same time, a spokesman for the Anglo-French military purchasing mission said "it would not be surprising if French orders for American airplanes and war materials would be taken over by the British."

A preliminary survey showed that French investments in the United States total in the neighborhood of $800,000,000, about half of which is in dollar balances. On top of this, it is believed that France has $500,000,000 in gold on deposit here.

FIVE EGYPTIANS KILLED IN RAIDS BY DUCE'S MEN

CAIRO, June 17—Five Egyptian soldiers were killed and nine wounded in four Italian air raids yesterday, a communique stated today.

The announcement said Sollum, Sidi Barrani and Mersa Matruh were bombed by Italian planes, Mersa Matruh undergoing two attacks.

At Mersa Matruh, it was reported, a 200-pound bomb exploded two feet from the entrance to a dugout where correspondents were taking shelter.

(Reuters dispatch said Richard Mowrer of the Chicago Daily News was injured in the face and taken to a hospital. Other correspondents suffered abrasions when they were struck by falling masonry, Reuters reported.)

Announcement of the Italian raids came as the nation awaited a cabinet decision on what action to take regarding Italy as a result of the attack on Sollum on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier.

The ministers considered the possibility of a declaration of war after King Farouk conferred with Premier Aly Maher Pasha and War Minister Mohamed Saleh Harb Pasha. Later the premier and war minister conferred with Major General Wilson, commander of British forces in Egypt.

(An Exchange Telegraph dispatch said the Egyptian official view was that since the Sollum attack was directed against a police and not a military post, it did not constitute grounds for a declaration of war.)

POLING VERSUS SCHWIN COURT TRIAL ASSIGNED

Judge Meeker Terwilliger announced Monday that the case of Virgil E. Poling against Charles Schwin, Tariton, will be heard before a jury Tuesday in Common Pleas Court.

In his suit against Schwin, administrator for the estate of Jasper Poling, his father, Poling claims that he and his father entered into a labor contract before his father's death, and that he is entitled to $2,325 payment for his services.

FRANCE'S FALL ADDS PROBLEM FOR UNCLE SAM

French fleet—second only to the British in Europe and the fourth strongest in the world—might fall into Hitler's hands. Although Germany is formidable on land and in the air, it ranks sixth or seventh among the nations (depending on the position assigned Soviet Russia) as a sea power.

Acquisition of the French fleet would greatly strengthen the Reich's striking force against the Western Hemisphere. More immediately, it would give Germany and Italy together sea power approximating that of Great Britain and would vastly increase their chances of defeating the British Empire.

According to latest available figures, France has (not counting recently-launched vessels not included in official tables) six battleships, two aircraft carriers, 18 cruisers, 70 destroyers and 72 submarines. Many of the French destroyers are of modern construction, capable of speeds between 35 and 40 knots.

If France is forced to surrender on land, three alternatives were believed possible should the French refuse to give up their fleet. These were: (1) scuttle it, as the Germans did their ships at the end of the first world war; (2) instruct fleet commanders to keep up the war at sea, taking orders from the British admiralty and depending on Britain for bases and supplies; or (3) turn the fleet over without condition to Great Britain.

Reports from London implied that the British government assumed that regardless of what happened to the French army, the navy would continue in the war. This led to the belief in Washington that some understanding regarding the fleet already may have been reached between French leaders and Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The surrender of France also would raise the delicate question of sovereignty over French possessions in the Americas—St. Pierre, Miquelon, Martinique and French Guiana. Should Hitler lay claim to these, it would place Germany in direct conflict with United States policy. The transfer of sovereignty over European possessions in the Americas would be regarded as a patent violation of the Monroe Doctrine. A resolution stating America's policy on this question even more strongly than did President Monroe now is pending in congress. It has the announced support of the administration.

TWO BOYS FACE COURT IN SERIES OF THEFTS

Robert Payne, 17, and Harley (Peck) Smith, 15, Circleville boys arrested at noon Saturday for a series of minor thefts, will be taken before Judge Lemuel Weldon Tuesday for hearing.

The hearing, originally scheduled for Monday, has been postponed to give police and probation officials an opportunity to make further investigation of the case and talk to the boys' parents.

Both boys are on parole for petty larceny. Payne from the Boys' Industrial School, near Lancaster, and Smith from the juvenile court.

PARIS RETURNS TO NORMALCY

old captured German battleflags were taken away by the French.

In the Court of Honor were motley groups of French Moroccan, Indo-Chinese, Tunisian, Hindu and Anamite prisoners of soldiers, some of them wounded and most of them so footsore they were unable to walk. They were picked up all around Paris.

The city itself is under the administration of Military Governor General Dentz who remained, consequently, the municipal services, including the light, water and sanitary departments are functioning well.

During Saturday, for example, the major German problem was how to handle the enormous number of French prisoners falling into their hands.

Amidst all of this came a couple of French soldiers from the south Paris region to inform them they had been dispatched by their division to tell General Von Studnitz, who took command of Paris, that they had thrown away their guns and were going in with their hands up.

The only thing to do was to divert a huge stream of men around the city to avoid congestions.

I saw a small German patrol halt a carload of French officers, fully armed, near the Rue De Rivoli, and disarm them.

The bewildered Frenchmen said they were part of a garrison driving home for lunch.

In fact, the German occupation came so quickly that it left Paris-

ians speechless, and just now are they coming slowly out of their daze, or hide-outs.

They are beginning to feel firsthand the precise discipline of the German troops.

Soon after the first German troops reached the Champs Elysees, two Fieseler Storch planes landed in the Place De La Concorde, and out stepped the high command's liaison Colonel Warlimont who greeted General Von Studnitz.

Colonel Warlimont then stood in front of the obelisk and watched the first divisions pursuing the French file past him.

The American military attaché, Colonel Horace Fuller, and Naval Attaché Lieutenant Colonel Commander Roscoe Hillen-Koetter also were there, watching.

Previously, Ambassador Bullitt, acting as dean of the remnant of the diplomatic corps, paid a call on General Von Studnitz, and the German officer later returned the call.

The rest of the diplomats were summoned to the United States embassy and informed of the curfew, blackout and suspension of telegraphic communications.

Ambassador Bullitt has been treated by the Germans with all the monolithic politeness due his rank. In fact, on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, the dapper silk-hatted ambassador once again appeared at Hotel Crillon and requested further audience with General Von Studnitz.

The audience was granted, and also the privilege of occasional relay of embassy communications to Washington.

So far as I can see, Ambassador Bullitt seems to be astonished at the official courtesies shown him.

Ambulances and police emergency squads sped to the locale of the crash and their members found five bodies sprawled grotesquely on one street and seven around the corner in another street. The twelfth body believed that of a spectator, was not immediately identified.

The bombers were part of a flight of four planes which were flying in close formation.

A telephone operator at Creedmore State Hospital eye-witnessed the crash.

"I saw four planes flying in formation," she said. "Suddenly, two of them came together and exploded in the air."

One pilot was still living when pulled from the wreckage of his plane but his neck was broken and he died a few minutes later.

SOVIET MOVES INTO BALKANS

Moscow said the German embassy notified the Russian government that President Smetona of Lithuania and several members of the Lithuanian government crossed the border into Germany on the night of June 16 and were interned in German territory.

(A Reuters (British) dispatch from Kaunas said Former Lithuanian Interior Minister Skucas and the chief of the political police both were arrested and will be court-martialed. The war minister, Gen. Mustekis, was reported dismissed and a curfew proclaimed.)

(From Tallinn, Estonia, it was reported that the government at once accept the Soviet ultimatum to "guarantee carrying out of the Soviet-Estonian mutual assistance pact." It stated Soviet troops will be centered at several new points and that hopes were expressed the populace would remain calm and show good will toward the troops when they arrive.)

U. S. PILOTS MAY FLY PLANES TO CANADIAN PORTS

WASHINGTON, June 17—The treasury ruled today that henceforth American airplanes may be flown across the Canadian border for delivery to the Allies with American pilots at the controls.

An opinion of the treasury's legal staff said that it would no longer be necessary to tow planes across the border.

The opinion stated that title to the aircraft could pass from American ownership to foreign ownership while in the air. One of the reasons for the action was that the airport at Houlton, Me., where airplanes released for the Allies are being delivered, is not large enough to accommodate military aircraft.

OHIO ASSEMBLY MAY COMPLETE WORK IN WEEK

Solons Convene At 7:30 Monday Evening After Call By Bricker

TAFT'S ROLE WATCHED

Some Believe Attempt To Split Ballot To Hurt Candidate's Choice

COLUMBUS, June 17—Barring unanticipated opposition over the proposal to split the state and national tickets at the November election, it appeared probable today that the 93rd General Assembly would sweep through its special session before the end of the week.

The stage was set for the session to open at 7:30 p. m. today, and Governor Bricker was to appear in person before a joint gathering of the Senate and House at 8 p. m. to present his five-point emergency legislative program.

In addition to the ballot proposal, Bricker was to ask the legislature to push through additional appropriations for relief and Old Age pensions, an amendment to increase pensions from a maximum of $30 to $40 per month, and a measure that would boost financial aid to dependent children.

As the lawmakers gathered in the capital, it was reported that U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, G. O. P. presidential aspirant, had agreed not to interfere with the plan to divorce the ballot.

Might Hurt Taft

It was also learned that he might even urge representatives from his home county of Hamilton to "go along" with the election move. However, Taft's followers still were believed to be opposed to it on the ground that it might hurt the senator's chances to win the nomination at the G. O. P. National convention in Philadelphia next week.

There was still a possibility, some believed, that angry Republican representatives might balk at the move to rush through the ballot-splitting program. Administration leaders admitted that without the eight House votes from Hamilton County, they probably could not pass the measure as an emergency.

Some political observers expressed the conviction that Bricker, by calling together the Assembly to sever the two tickets, had injured his own chances to become a "dark horse" candidate for the presidential nomination in Philadelphia.

They pointed out that such a move intimidated Ohio Republicans were not certain they could carry the state in November and were eager to be on a separate ticket in the event of a Democratic landslide.

Merely Local Issue

Bricker and his aides have insisted the move was merely a "local issue" to give the voters a chance to choose between the present administration and the Democratic ticket headed by former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Little opposition was expected on the other emergency measures, which would provide an additional $1,400,000 for relief and $1,000,000 to provide pensions for 16,000 whose claims have been approved but who haven't received them because no money was available.

Also expected to pass were the proposed measures to boost the pension maximum and aid to dependent children.

Republican members of the House were to meet this afternoon to select a new speaker pro tem and majority floor leader to succeed Congressman J. Harry McGregor.

Republican leaders intimated that Rep. William H. Deddens, Cincinnati, would be picked to succeed McGregor, who dropped out of the state political picture when he was elected to Congress.

Deddens name has been mentioned for the job for months, and his chances to obtain it were increased by the fact that the administration appeared to appease the Hamilton County delegation to prevent a flareup over the ballot issue.

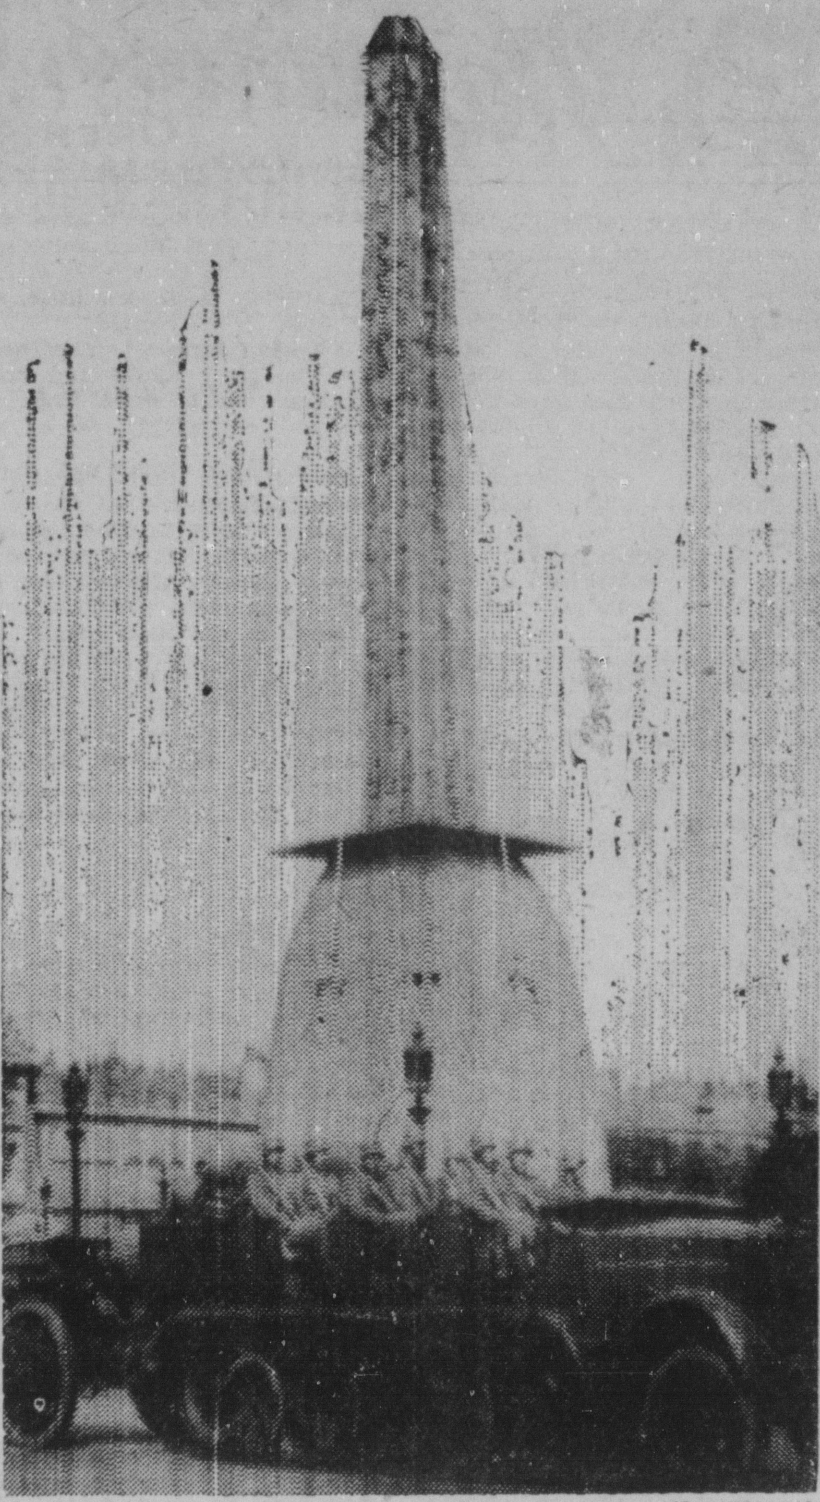

In the event of an unexpected delay in passage of the program, it was believed the Assembly would recess Thursday until after the G. O. P. convention to permit Hamilton County Republicans to attend it.

OHIO CIVIL WAR VETERANS MEET IN CONVENTION

COLUMBUS, June 17—Their ranks dwindled from 49,011 to a few score, Ohio Civil War veterans met in Columbus today for their seventy-fourth encampment which probably will be their last.

National Guard Expense At Maneuvers to Be High

COLUMBUS, June 17—Payroll of the Ohio National Guard for the period of the Second Army maneuver to be near Sparta, Wis., August 11-31 will be $450,000, Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, the adjutant general, disclosed today in a logistics report on the troop movement to the maneuver area.

A total of $33,000 will be spent in Ohio for three days travel ration prior to the trip to the northern Wisconsin woods, he said. Guardsmen will be paid by check at the conclusion of the training.

In the largest troop movement from Ohio since the World War, 8,000 guardsmen will travel by rail and 3,300 will ride in 700 motor vehicles. Six convoys will make the trip with the advance detachment of 300 men commanded by Col. Edward P. Lawlor, Columbus, arriving at the maneuver area August 10.

Other convoys of 110 motor vehicles each will gather at Bryan, Celina, Lima, Eaton and Cincinnati preparatory to the nearly 600 mile journey. Bivouacs will be made enroute at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Warsaw, Plymouth, Lafayette, Indiana, and at Camp Grant, Ill.

Troops will arrive at the maneuver area between 8 a. m. August 12 and 5 p. m. August 13. More than 250 tons of equipment will be transported by the troops by rail or by truck.

The 112th Observation Squadron of Cleveland will fly its 10 airplanes to its maneuver base at Camp Williams.

More than 26,000 regulars and 45,000 guardsmen from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kentucky and West Virginia, will be concentrated for the training under the command of Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, Chicago, commanding general of the Second Army.

NATIONAL GUARD TOLD TO BE IN BEST CONDITION

Rumors that Circleville members of the Ohio National Guard have been informed that they will be placed under federal supervision instead of state on July 1 were discounted Monday by the Ohio adjutant general's office. The rumor had been prevalent during the last few days.

Orders, however, have gone out to guard officers to keep guard affairs in good order so that if necessity arises for quick action the units will be in top condition.

CHIEF OF POLICE HITS 'CRACKERS IN CITY LIMITS

"There will be no shooting of fire crackers within the city limits," Police Chief William McCrady warned Monday after he had lectured Robert Stonerock, 15, and Robert Maley, 16, both of Williamsport, for the offense Saturday night.

The chief added that a city ordinance prohibits the shooting of fire works within the city and anyone violating the ordinance will be arrested.

SATURDAY NIGHT CROWD BIGGEST IN LONG WHILE

An immense crowd estimated by Circleville police as the largest in Circleville this year, milled through downtown streets, Saturday night and kept Patrolmen Elmer Meriman and George Green busy directing traffic until late at night.

In spite of the crowd Circleville's Main Street parallel parking system handled the automobiles nicely, Patrolman Meriman reported. Not one parking ticket was given, while two weeks ago three were issued.

"We had the worst trouble with automobiles which stop in the middle of the street to let out passengers, thus tying up traffic behind them," he said.

The Ashville-Harrison joint Board of Education will be in session at the school office here this evening. Along with other routine business a teacher may be employed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. E. F. Martin. A part of the duties of the new instructor will be the teaching of manual training.

The several Fourth of July, Big Ashville Day committees tell us they are moving right along and having splendid success in arranging the Big Day program. Something for everybody, is the plan, they say. The usual big fireworks display has been purchased.

Harry Topolosky, recently of the Morris hardware store, has purchased and fitted out a road truck capable of hauling all and any kind of junk.

E. F. Schlegel, Arthur Petty and E. W. Seeds were the appraisers of the estate of Taylor Brintlinger. Mrs. George Messick, the daughter, is administratrix. The work shop, and cabinet tools of great variety, already have two or more buyers.

Charles Trone, Jr., now has employment at the Pickaway electric plant. Young Mr. Trone is a graduate of an electric school and is thoroughly equipped for the position he holds. He, with wife and son are residents of Ashville.

Our Gee Bee Stoker, a former publisher here and all-around sports fan and live wire, is now operating a grocery store on his own account over at Plain City. At his opening the other day he served more than a thousand customers. This word comes to us from Orville Mithoff, an old grocer himself, who was there assisting. And this boy Mithoff now a food broker in the Capital City, is not doing so badly himself, having many accounts with the big packers of standard foods. Disposes of his wares to the wholesale trade. He has been in this line for the last six years. Was here Saturday with daughter Barbara and 2-year-old Master Dick.

Mrs. Jane Armstrong Welliver, recently employed to teach grade Five of the local schools, is the mother of twin sons, Rupert and Reginald, and with them, will reside in Ashville.

MANY TRAPPED IN FRANCE ASK AID FROM U. S.

BORDEAUX, June 17—Between 3,000 and 4,000 Americans are stranded in southwestern France, mostly in the Bordeaux area, where they have been vainly seeking some means of transportation to the United States.

With no vessels scheduled to sail, the Americans expressed hope President Roosevelt might dispatch American warships in Portuguese waters to call at Bordeaux and pick them up.

WASHINGTON, June 17—American nationals who have been forced into a "pocket" and stranded in southwestern France by the advance of the German army will be returned to this country under some sort of evacuation plan, if they cannot get home any other way, government spokesmen indicated today.

Appraised of the predicament of the Americans, reportedly numbering 3,000 to 4,000, the spokesmen pointed out, rather wearily, that this government since last September has been urging nationals residing in belligerent countries to return home.

No official action has been taken in the matter the spokesmen said. They intimated, however, that some arrangement might be made with the American Red Cross, which is dispatching three "mercy ships" to Europe, under which the stranded Americans could return on these vessels after their cargoes of supplies for war refugees are discharged.

There was still a possibility, some believed, that angry Republican representatives might balk at the move to rush through the ballots-splitting program. Administration leaders admitted that without the eight House votes from Hamilton County, they probably could not pass the measure as an emergency.

Some political observers expressed the conviction that Bricker, by calling together the Assembly to sever the two tickets, had injured his own chances to become a "dark horse" candidate for the presidential nomination in Philadelphia.

They pointed out that such a move intimidated Ohio Republicans were not certain they could carry the state in November and were eager to be on a separate ticket in the event of a Democratic landslide.

Merely Local Issue

Bricker and his aides have insisted the move was merely a "local issue" to give the voters a chance to choose between the present administration and the Democratic ticket headed by former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Little opposition was expected on the other emergency measures, which would provide an additional $1,400,000 for relief and $1,000,000 to provide pensions for 16,000 whose claims have been approved but who haven't received them because no money was available.

Also expected to pass were the proposed measures to boost the pension maximum and aid to dependent children.

Republican members of the House were to meet this afternoon to select a new speaker pro tem and majority floor leader to succeed Congressman J. Harry McGregor.

Republican leaders intimated that Rep. William H. Daddens, Cincinnati, would be picked to succeed McGregor, who dropped out of the state political picture when he was elected to Congress.

Daddens name has been mentioned for the job for months, and his chances to obtain it were increased by the fact that the administration appeared to appease the Hamilton County delegation to prevent a flareup over the ballot issue.

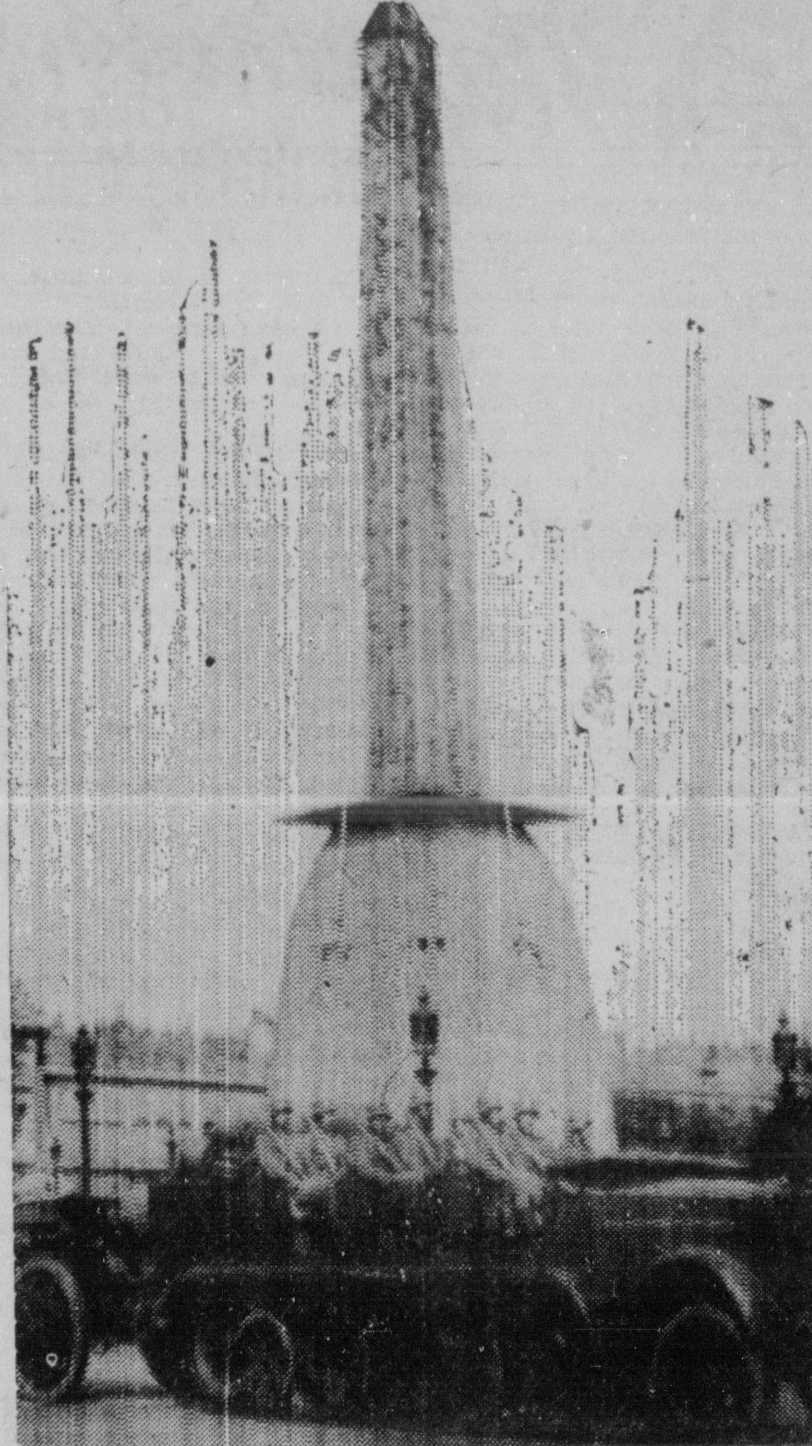

In the event of an unexpected delay in passage of the program, it was believed the Assembly would recess Thursday until after the G. O. P. convention to permit Hamilton County Republicans to attend it.

National Guard Expense At Maneuvers to Be High

COLUMBUS, June 17—Payroll of the Ohio National Guard for the period of the Second Army maneuver to be near Sparta, Wis., August 11-31 will be $450,000, Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, the adjutant general, disclosed today in a logistics report on the troop movement to the maneuver area.

A total of $33,000 will be spent in Ohio for three days travel ration prior to the trip to the northern Wisconsin woods, he said. Guardsmen will be paid by check at the conclusion of the training.

In the largest troop movement from Ohio since the World War, 8,000 guardsmen will travel by rail and 3,300 will ride in 700 motor vehicles. Six convoys will make the trip with the advance detachment of 300 men commanded by Col. Edward P. Lawlor, Columbus, arriving at the maneuver area August 10.

Other convoys of 110 motor vehicles each will gather at Bryan, Colina, Lima, Eaton and Cincinnati preparatory to the nearly 600 mile journey. Bivouacs will be

AMERICAN AIDE IN PARIS SAFE, NOT IN CUSTODY

With German Army in Paris, June 17—United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt is safe in Paris and not under any sort of custody, it was disclosed today.

An International News Service correspondent saw Bullitt at the American embassy as well as American Consul General Robert D. Murphy. Both were completely at liberty.

Immediately after the German occupation there were reports abroad that Bullitt had been placed under protective custody. These reports were denied at the time by German spokesmen.

NATIONAL GUARD TOLD TO BE IN BEST CONDITION

Rumors that Circleville members of the Ohio National Guard have been informed that they will be placed under federal supervision instead of state on July 1 were discounted Monday by the Ohio adjutant general's office. The rumor had been prevalent during the last few days.

Orders, however, have gone out to guard officers to keep guard affairs in good order so that if necessity arises for quick action the units will be in top condition.

CHIEF OF POLICE HITS 'CRACKERS IN CITY LIMITS

"There will be no shooting of fire crackers within the city limits," Police Chief William McCrady warned Monday after he had lectured Robert Stonerock, 15, and Robert Maley, 16, both of Williamsport, for the offense Saturday night.

The chief added that a city ordinance prohibits the shooting of fire works within the city and anyone violating the ordinance will be arrested.

SATURDAY NIGHT CROWD BIGGEST IN LONG WHILE

An immense crowd estimated by Circleville police as the largest in Circleville this year, milled through downtown streets, Saturday night and kept Patrolmen Elmer Merriman and George Green busy directing traffic until late at night.

In spite of the crowd Circleville's Main Street parallel parking system handled the automobiles nicely, Patrolman Merriman reported. Not one parking ticket was given, while two weeks ago three were issued.

"We had the worst trouble with automobiles which stop in the middle of the street to let out passengers, thus tying up traffic behind them," he said.

Engineers estimate that the turbulent Colorado River which carved the more than one-mile deep Grand Canyon, every 24 hours carries past a given point an average of 1,000,000 tons of sand and silt.

Troops will arrive at the maneuver area between 8 a. m. August 12 and 5 p. m. August 13. More than 250 tons of equipment will be transported by the troops by rail or by truck.

The 112th Observation squadron of Cleveland will fly its 10 airplanes to its maneuver base at Camp Williams.

More than 26,000 regulars and 45,000 guardsmen from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kentucky and West Virginia, will be concentrated for the training under the command of Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, Chicago, commanding general of the Second Army.

ASHVILLE By F. D. Fridley Phone Ashville 79

The Ashville-Harrison joint Board of Education will be in session at the school office here this evening. Along with other routine business a teacher may be employed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. E. F. Martin. A part of the duties of the new instructor will be the teaching of manual training.

The several Fourth of July, Big Ashville Day committees tell us they are moving right along and having splendid success in arranging the Big Day program. Something for everybody, is the plan, they say. The usual big fireworks display has been purchased.

Harry Topolesky, recently of the Morris hardware store, has purchased and fitted out a road truck capable of hauling all and any kind of junk.

The Lutheran Church people over in St. Paul territory are starting in to get busy on preparing for their Jitney Supper they are giving on this coming Thursday evening.

E. F. Schlegel, Arthur Petty and E. W. Seeds were the appraisers of the estate of Taylor Brintlinger. Mrs. George Messick, the daughter, is administratrix. The work shop, and cabinet tools of great variety, already have two or more buyers.

Charles Trone, Jr., now has employment at the Pickaway electric plant. Young Mr. Trone is a graduate of an electric school and is thoroughly equipped for the position he holds. He, with wife and son are residents of Ashville.

Our Gee Bee Stoker, a former publisher here and allaround sports fan and live wire, is now operating a grocery store on his own account over at Plain City. At his opening the other day he served more than a thousand customers. This word comes to us from Orville Mithoff, an old grocer himself, who was there assisting. And this boy Mithoff now a food broker in the Capital City, is not doing so badly himself, having many accounts with the big packers of standard foods. Disposes of his wares in the wholesale trade. He has been in this line for the last six years. Was here Saturday with daughter Barbara and 2-year-old Master Dick.

Mrs. Jane Armstrong Welliver, recently employed to teach grade Five of the local schools, is the mother of twin sons, Rupert and Reginald, and with them, will reside in Ashville.

MANY TRAPPED IN FRANCE ASK AID FROM U. S.

BORDEAUX, June 17—Between 3,000 and 4,000 Americans are stranded in southwestern France, mostly in the Bordeaux area, where they have been vainly seeking some means of transportation to the United States.

With no vessels scheduled to sail, the Americans expressed hope President Roosevelt might dispatch American warships in Portuguese waters to call at Bordeaux and pick them up.

WASHINGTON, June 17—American nationals who have been forced into a "pocket" and stranded in southwestern France by the advance of the German army will be returned to this country under some sort of evacuation plan, if they cannot get home any other way, government spokesmen indicated today.

Apprised of the predicament of the Americans, reportedly numbering 3,000 to 4,000, the spokesmen pointed out, rather wearily, that this government since last September has been urging nationals residing in belligerent countries to return home.

No official action has been taken in the matter the spokesmen said. They intimated, however, that some arrangement might be made with the American Red Cross, which is dispatching three "mercy ships" to Europe, under which the stranded Americans could return on these vessels after their cargoes of supplies for war refugees are discharged.

JOINT MEMORIAL RITES CONDUCTED BY K. OF P.

Impressive joint memorial services were conducted Sunday at the Castle Hall with Philos Lodge No. 64 and the Pythian Sisters honoring 166 deceased brothers and deceased sisters.

The Rev. Charles F. Bowman of the Methodist Church was the speaker for the occasion, and Delbert Fickett, cornetist, and Miss Ruth Blum, pianist provided music. Turney Glick acted as chancellor commander and Lawrence Warner served as prelate.

The hall was decorated with a profusion of summer flowers. In addition to a large number of local members, visitors from surrounding lodges were present.

At the close of the services in the Castle flowers were placed on the graves of the deceased members in Forest and Reber Hill Cemeteries.

Robert Denman, chancellor commander of the lodge, with a committee comprised of O. E. Barr as chairman, Claude Kraft and Henry T. McCrady arranged the program.

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
SAILING OF U. S. ENVOY EYED
WASHINGTON—On June 25, Clarence E. Gauss sails for Australia. This is more than a routine foreign service shift. It means the United States is sending its first Minister to Australia in diplomatic history, at a time when relations between the two countries take on a new significance.

If the Germans cut the umbilical cord between London and Canberra, the United States will be drawn closer to Australia in the common cause of defending the Pacific.

Gauss is the man who sat on the hot spot in Shanghai, as Consul General and also Counselor of Embassy, during the Japanese invasion and subsequent conflicts. Australia's great fear is Japan, and he knows the country intimately.

Gauss is a diplomat who never wore spats, nor flaunted a college diploma. He quit school at 16 to become a court reporter, took testimony at congressional hearings. After he joined the State Department he studied nights to make up for lost schooling.

U. S. PACIFISTS

Once when in Washington on leave, Gauss was in the office of the Secretary of State when a late newspaper came to Mr. Hull's desk, bearing the banner headline: "U. S. DEFIES JAPAN."

This was at the height of the Chinese-Japanese war, through the maze of which the United States was steering a difficult course. So when Mr. Hull saw the headline, he blew up.

He explained that the Administration had been trying to soft-pedal that kind of news for two years, as a concession to the strong pacifist elements in the country. If the State Department should give them the slightest excuse by showing its intention to play a strong hand in the Orient, he pointed out, they would holler about the Administration dragging them into war.

Behind the scenes, however, he said that the Administration had been working to prepare public opinion for the time when it could bring its two-fisted diplomacy out in the open. When that time came, it wanted its policy backed by public opinion, and also by a strong navy in the Pacific.

With the departure of Clarence Gauss as first U. S. Minister to Australia, Mr. Hull's advisers believe that time has now come.

NOTE—Gauss is taking with him John Minter, State Department's able expert on Australian affairs. By special action of Congress Minter was transferred to the foreign service in order to be first secretary of the new legation.

Senator Hattie Caraway never issues statements and rarely "saws air" on the Senate floor. But those who know the quiet little lady from Arkansas appreciate that behind her demure exterior is one of the most pungent wits in Congress.

She demonstrated this the other day when several colleagues congratulated her on becoming a grandmother.

"Thank you," replied Mrs. Caraway. "I am now the first and only grandmother in the Senate." And then with a mis-

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles F. Stewart

WASHINGTON, June 17—Just two words account for the difficulties encountered in preliminary efforts to set up a working program for the Herculean task of providing a real national defense.

The two words are CO-OPERATE and CO-ORDINATE. Webster defines CO-OPERATE—

"The act or fact of co-operating; joint operation or action; in political economy, the combination of persons for purposes of production, purchase or distribution for their joint benefit."

And Webster defines CO-ORDINATE—

"Of the same order or degree; equal in rank or importance—in harmonious relation or action."

equal importance and responsibility with government for performing a successful job.

Harshly Treated
Industry feels that it has been harshly treated by the New Deal administration that now asks CO-OPERATION, while retaining exclusively the co-ordinating powers in bringing all the vast elements together and necessary for successful production.

The truth is that mutual distrust exists between industry and the New Deal administration and unless it is allayed our national defense will be handicapped. Our national defense during the first World War suffered to no small extent because the War Industries Board proved cumbersome, and it was not until members of the board including the cabinet, recognized the outstanding and superior abilities of Bernard Baruch, the chairman, that the program attained full momentum.

Our present national defense program is operating under the provisions of the law which created the War Industries Board, there having been no legislation since to change the program and for that reason it is argued in some quarters that possible error and delay might be avoided by managing another Baruch—in this instance probably a Knudsen—to take over as production dictator.

Henry Ford's Offer
Henry Ford may have been toyed with some such idea when, with more or less modesty, he offered to produce 1,000 planes a day on a mass basis—but with the stipulation that the government keep its hands off. Government cannot keep its hands ENTIRELY off. Henry Ford certainly knows that and is merely spoofing the New Deal administration. And the New Deal administration, quite consistently, naturally and politically may be expected to maintain, if it can, the same control over industry that has marked its fundamental policy. Indeed, President Roosevelt in his last fireside chat emphasized insistence on maintaining New Deal policies. But whether they can be maintained or must be somewhat altered to conform to the exigencies of national defense remains the problem.

Doctor Still Does Best When He Sees Patient

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● I SAW a picture the other day called "The Doctor of the Future." He was in a dark room reading X-ray plates and heart tracings and laboratory tests. How close is it to realization that a doctor can tell about a patient this way without seeing the patient?

In my opinion, it is far from close. I believe that 95 per cent of all valuable information that a doctor gets for purposes of diagnosis and treatment comes from talking with the patient and examining with the eyes and hands and the stethoscope. In fact, I gave

A patient at the Boston City Hospital sent a note to her doctor as follows: "Dear Doctor: I am just recovering from the effect of your tests. I am sending this box of candy as a token of my appreciation."

Another story is of the patient who said to Doctor Herrick of Chicago, "Doctor, I hope you will be different from the other doctors whom I have consulted. I hope you will look less at the X-ray picture and more at me."

Please give a list of liquid foods which would represent a well balanced diet, with adequate caloric and vitamin content.

This sort of feeding is often necessary with people who have to use tubes and for convalescents. From the following list the menu can be planned. All food in solid form must be pureed and strained: Acid milks, albumin fruit juices, albumin water (1 or 2 whites of eggs to a glass of water), almond milk, applesauce, apricots, barley water, lima beans, beef juice, beets, bismark, black coffee, bouillon, butter, buttermilk, carrots, cereal waters, chicken broth, chocolate, clear and cream soups, cocoa, cod liver oil, and cornmeal. Also cream, cream of wheat, dextrin-maltose, eggs (raw), farina, fruit juices, glucose (10 per cent solution), honey, corn syrup, powdered milk lactose (10 to 20 per cent solution), maple syrup, malted milk, cow's or goat's milk, oatmeal gruel, olive oil, orange albumin (1 or 2 whites of eggs with juice of an orange in equal parts of water), parsnips, peas, peptone solution (20 to 40 per cent), peptonized milk, plain milk, potato-boiled, sweet or white, prunes, pumpkin, cereals, breakfast food, rice, salt, spinach strained cereals, strained fruits, strained vegetables, sugar, tea—clear, tomato juice, turnip, vegetable soup, whites of eggs.

THE BARCLAY CONVENTION
AS SOON as Horace M. Byrnes of Pennsylvania presented his improvement on the Blackwood convention, whereby 4-Clubs became the ace asking call instead of 4-No Trumps, a series of experiments began. It culminated in the development of an extension of the same principle, which its original devotees have now named "The Barclay Convention." In simplest terms, it is merely this: When partners' bidding has clearly agreed upon the declaration, the ace-asking call is the very lowest bid possible which could not possibly have a natural meaning, the responses being on an ascending scale, as in the case of the Blackwood.

After the 3-Diamonds guarantee game and shows the fit of the hands, South invites slam with the lowest bid which cannot be misunderstood. Since 3-Hearts must indicate a fit for North's hearts, 3-Spades is the lowest safe slam call. To this, 3-No Trumps would show no aces, 4-Clubs one, so that was bid.

The cheapest next bid, which is not the agreed declaration, is the king asking call. Since 4-Diamonds is the agreed suit, 4-Hearts is the king-asker. North would show none with 4-Spades, one with 4-No Trumps, two with 5-Clubs, three with 5-Diamonds, the last being what he used. South now knows about the grand slam, so bids it without a qualm.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"THE TROUBLE with your idea, Gayle," Bill Bailey was saying, "is that we haven't enough room. Not even this big mansion can accommodate a theater that will seat more than 400. And there wouldn't be time to take out all the seats and then have a dance."

The other girls and Jeremy Tucker sat with them in this conference.

"The Orpheum" theater man wants us to present the play on his stage," Bill went on. "But that's out."

"What we need is something outdoors," Gayle suggested. "It's spring. Summer, really. We could have a garden party, couldn't we? And then move the people inside to see the play?"

"Grand!" Tempe Hyde put in. Tempe was given to sudden enthusiasms. "Under the oaks."

Jeremy chimed in. "Oh, I say—see here, a lot of times, in the ancient days, people did have plays outdoors. In ancient Rome and Greece, and I think in Egypt. And even in the prehistoric civilizations of Mexico. Archeology reveals much that—"

"That iss so!" Lola Montes said, brightly. "In New Mexico, too, those ancients have been times or indoors always. Everything iss outdoors where I was born, even now."

"I had no idea you were born outdoors, Lola!" Gayle couldn't resist that, but as the others laughed with her she turned to Bill. "Sorry, author, you'll have to write us an outdoor drama."

"Look, I'll do that!" Bill was suddenly earnest. "I mean, I can make 'The Wit to Woo' an outdoor play as well as indoors. Do you suppose we could we arrange a stage out here?"

"Al fresco?" Gayle encouraged. "Right! We could make it go, Gayle. Look! Act one might just as well take place in a bower of trees and shrubbery instead of a campus cloister as I planned it. Yonder in a nook just off the east path—remember the clearing there? It slopes just right for the seats, and there's a flat spot for the acting. We could string lights, and—say, I can whip up a swell setting around the swimming pool, too, I'll bet!"

The conference was on the shady front porch this morning, and Bill leaned to a small table there and spread his script. Gayle sat near his left, Jeremy to his right. In a moment the six other girls were standing behind and beside them, crowding close, leaning to read the script again and talk about it.

"At the pool is where the secondary climax can be worked in," Bill was saying. "See, the heroine's sister goes there to be alone and sit on a bench and think, because she thinks her heart is broken. In that quiet mood, she begins humming, and finally singing. Sort of like in an opera, see? She sings of her heartbreak—that'll have to be you, Lola; you took the singing honors last time—and—"

One of the other girls interrupted. "But Lola doesn't have an aneurism, Beel. She is verree happy." Everybody laughed a little, and Bill took up the brogue. "I'll have Jeremie make thee—how you say?—Love—and break her heart before hand. Then she can act convincingly, no es verree?"

Poor Jeremy turned crimson at the suggestion, and at the mass attention suddenly turned on him. Lola's smile had faded; she looked slightly alarmed at the others, until the conference was resumed.

"Anyhow, the sister sings," Bill went on, "and pours out her heart. Maybe we could have a concealed orchestra to back her up there. Anyway, her guitar. But after she sings she is still restless. The night is warm, the water inviting, see? So she decides to go for a lonely swim."

"Because it is midnight and she is alone, she doesn't bother to go back to her room for her swim suit. She just strips and dives in. The water is refreshing. The audience sees her swim back and forth from the dark night shadows at one end through the moonlit waves at the other end—that'll make a grand sequence, won't it?"

"But the hero has heard her singing from afar, and because he is anxious to explain his actions in the earlier scenes he comes seeking her now. He does not know she is in the pool, but he walks through the shrubbery and trees in that direction, softly calling her. When he gets near the pool, she hears. But of course she cannot answer him. Consternation grips her. She dare not even leave the pool to flee. So she just retreats into the dark shadows at the shallow end, with just her nose exposed. She won't even be visible to the audience, but they'll know she is there, see?"

Bill was improvising, gesturing and talking at lib, staring at all and none of the group around him and writing his play as he talked. He had a definite sense of the dramatic and he even made the telling of it good.

"But the hero," he resumed, "continues to call her. When he comes to the edge of the pool he calls twice more, waits, gets no answer. Then he, too, gripped by the apparent solitude of the place, and in a moody mood of his own, breaks into song—we'll end up making this a light opera if we aren't careful! If I'm to act the hero, I'll get a stand-in; I know some fellows who can really sing, and I'll make one of them do my stuff for me in the bushes, while I open my mouth and go through the motions, see? I'll look real, with just the moonlight on."

"All right, then, the hero sings, too, and maybe he walks out onto the big diving board to do it. Maybe that will be the place for the best effect—we'll have to go see tonight. Then, say, he also gets the urge to go swimming. It can be a slow scene, understand; a lot of pantomime to build up the mood. But the suspense will be growing all the time because the girl is concealed in the other end of the pool, and being a very lovely and moral girl she is in a predicament now the audience knows. And so what happens? Well, when—"

The sheer story interest of Bill's recitation held them for another quarter hour or so.

Bill had undeniable talent, a flair for comedy and incident and situation which go to make light dramas good. The others in this group were deeply impressed this morning and they showed it by their manner. Enthusiasm for the theater grew rapidly in all of them, and the nine young people felt a happy intimacy they had not experienced before.

On Jeremy Tucker's face, especially, had come a change. He looked owl-eyed with surprise at times, through his heavy-rimmed glasses, but he reflected the group enthusiasm, too.

"I say—see here, Bill! There are some old, ah, bleacher seats stored in one of the stables. I have ordered them removed because I plan to purchase some saddle horses this week. I was told that the old seats had been used when my mother and father lived here, and sponsored important matches on the two tennis courts. I believe these old seats could be used again."

"Swell, Jeremy! We'll use them. May have to—say, we've got to work out at three for the climax and the final wash-up of the story. Now, we can't move the scenery, but we can move the audience, say over to the tennis courts. That would be logical for a college story. I had planned for the characters to meet in a sorority house in act three, but they might just as well meet on the sorority house tennis courts. Eh?"

"Why not?" Tempe Hyde nodded, and the others agreed.

And so it went for another hour. Twelve o'clock had come and slipped by before the matter was finally decided. There were still details and the group agreed to meet again after lunch, which Gayle ordered for one o'clock.

At a quarter of one Gayle suddenly missed Lola. Through a window then she saw her at a distance, walking toward the Merfield swimming pool, and on sudden impulse she followed.

She came onto the dark-haired girl staring at the water. Lola blushed a little in surprise when she turned to face Gayle.

"Is not any tree over these little end," she spoke, in a sort of hushed tone of awe. "I am anxious to—do my part. But I—all those people will be looking, Gayle! And I will have to—"

She halted, and Gayle laughed and suddenly put an arm around the other girl.

"Lola, you are a darling! And we'll iron that matter out some way, never fear. For instance, you could wear tights and—"

She stopped, because Jeremy had suddenly appeared through the bushes, his face also showing grave concern.

PALMS, ELMS, ETC.

AN easterner who visited California recently got tired of hearing local enthusiasts brag about palms and eucalyptus and redwood trees. When she could bear it no longer she retorted, "But you have no elms!"

Local pride is a natural, and often wholesome, emotion. But it is also rather youthful. An adult attitude would recognize the charms of California's vegetation and also those of New England and the South and the Middle West and the Northwest. And all together they comprise this beloved land, the United States of America.

A few years ago a young woman wrote a sketch about her own discovery of the variety, as well as the vastness, of America. She had been born and raised in the gracious, rolling, fertile hills of Lancaster County in Pennsylvania, and the country there seemed to her the most pleasant region possible. Then her family moved to a New England seacoast town and a whole new world opened to her. Without losing her love of her Pennsylvania home she came to appreciate deeply the sea and its shore and the people who lived there.

She went to college in a small and pleasant town in Ohio and after graduation married and moved to Oklahoma. At first the great flat landscape terrified her. The sky was too big. She longed for the more intimate surroundings of hills. But gradually the beauty of far horizons, wind and sun and endless fields of grain began to touch her spirit. She loved this region, too, and found herself aware of a new patriotism and loyalty to all the regions she knew and others yet to be visited.

EVERYBODY'S FINGERPRINTS

THERE are plenty of arguments in favor of fingerprinting aliens in this country, and we may soon make it a legal requirement of their residence here. Why not go a step farther and fingerprint everybody, citizens of native stock along with the newcomers?

The movement toward universal fingerprinting has gained much support in the last year or two. So far it is chiefly a matter of educating the public in the usefulness of fingerprint records for safety and identification. In many communities large numbers of citizens have taken to the idea cordially.

If we were all doing it there would be less chance of discourtesy or injustice to any of the decent and law-abiding aliens who are in this country for legitimate reasons and many of whom are on their way to becoming good citizens. Universal fingerprinting would not make it harder to check on any aliens who may actually be here for treacherous purposes.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON, June 17—Just two words account for the difficulties encountered in preliminary efforts to set up a working program for the Herculean task of providing a real national defense. The two words are CO-OPERATE and CO-ORDINATE.

Webster defines CO-OPERATE—
"The act or fact of co-operating; joint operation or action; in political economy, the combination of persons for purposes of production, purchase or distribution for their joint benefit."

And Webster defines CO-ORDINATE—
"Of the same order or degree; equal in rank or importance—in harmonious relation or action."

Between the subtle difference in the definitions of these two words and divergent interpretations, government and industry are worlds apart.

Industry is asked to CO-OPERATE but shrinks from playing a subservient role with all the responsibility for the possible failure of governmental administration.

"Industry is quite willing to CO-ORDINATE ('equal in rank or importance; in harmonious relation or action'), thus sharing equal importance and responsibility with government for performing a successful job.

Harshly Treated

Industry feels that it has been harshly treated by the New Deal administration that now asks CO-OPERATION, while retaining exclusively the co-ordinating powers in bringing all the vast elements together and necessary for successful production.

The truth is that mutual distrust exists between industry and the New Deal administration and unless it is allayed our national defense will be handicapped. Our national defense during the first World War suffered to no small extent because the War Industries Board proved cumbersome, and it was not until members of the board including the cabinet, recognized the outstanding and superior abilities of Bernard Baruch, the chairman, that the program attained full momentum.

Our present national defense program is operating under the provisions of the law which created the War Industries Board, there having been no legislation since to change the program and for that reason it is argued in some quarters that possible error and delinquency be avoided by naming another Baruch—in this

SAILING OF U. S. ENVOY EYED

WASHINGTON—On June 25, Clarence E. Gauss sails for Australia. This is more than a routine foreign service shift. It means the United States is sending its first Minister to Australia in diplomatic history, at a time when relations between the two countries take on a new significance.

If the Germans cut the umbilical cord between London and Canberra, the United States will be drawn closer to Australia in the common cause of defending the Pacific.

Gauss is the man who sat on the hot spot in Shanghai, as Consul General and also Counselor of Embassy, during the Japanese invasion and subsequent conflicts. Australia's great fear is Japan, and he knows the country intimately.

Gauss is a diplomat who never wore spats, nor flaunted a college diploma. He quit school at 16 to become a court reporter, took testimony at congressional hearings. After he joined the State Department he studied nights to make up for lost schooling.

U. S. PACIFISTS

Once when in Washington on leave, Gauss was in the office of the Secretary of State when a late newspaper came to Mr. Hull's desk, bearing the banner headline: "U. S. DEFIES JAPAN."

This was at the height of the Chinese-Japanese war, through the maze of which the United States was steering a difficult course. So when Mr. Hull saw the headline, he blew up.

He explained that the Administration had been trying to soft-pedal that kind of news for two years, as a concession to the strong pacifist elements in the country. If the State Department should give them the slightest excuse by showing its intention to play a strong hand in the Orient, he pointed out, they would holler about the Administration dragging them into war.

Behind the scenes, however, he said that the Administration had been working to prepare public opinion for the time when it could bring its two-fisted diplomacy out in the open. When that time came, it wanted its policy backed by public opinion, and also by a strong navy in the Pacific.

With the departure of Clarence Gauss as first U. S. Minister to Australia, Mr. Hull's advisers believe that time has now come.

NOTE—Gauss is taking with him John Minter, State Department's able expert on Australian affairs. By special action of Congress Minter was transferred to the foreign service in order to be first secretary of the new legation.

LOTS OF OLD WOMEN

Senator Hattie Caraway never issues statements and rarely "saws air" on the Senate floor. But those who know the quiet little lady from Arkansas appreciate that behind her demure exterior is one of the most pungent wits in Congress.

She demonstrated this the other day when several colleagues congratulated her on becoming a grandmother.

"Thank you," replied Mrs. Caraway, "I am now the first and only grandmother in the Senate." And then with a mis-

Doctor Still Does Best When He Sees Patient

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● I SAW a picture the other day called "The Doctor of the Future." He was in a dark room reading X-ray plates and heart tracings and laboratory tests. How close is it to realization that a doctor can tell about a patient this way without seeing the patient?

In my opinion, it is far from close. I believe that 95 per cent of all valuable information that a doctor gets for purposes of diagnosis and treatment comes from talking with the patient and examining with the eyes and hands and the stethoscope. In fact, I gave a clinic to some high-grade doctors not long ago, in which I told them all about the laboratory findings and did not show the patient, and asked them to make a diagnosis. There wasn't one diagnosis that was within a thousand per cent of being right. When the patient walked in it was perfectly evident that he had a form of nervous disease called multiple sclerosis.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The Patients Write

A patient at the Boston City Hospital sent a note to her doctor as follows: "Dear Doctor: I am just recovering from the effect of your tests. I am sending this box of candy as a token of my appreciation."

Another story is of the patient who said to Doctor Herrick of Chicago, "Doctor, I hope you will be different from the other doctors whom I have consulted. I hope you will look less at the X-ray picture and more at me."

Please give a list of liquid foods which would represent a well balanced diet, with adequate caloric and vitamin content.

This sort of feeding is often necessary with people who have to use tubes and for convalescents. From the following list the menu can be planned. All food in solid form must be pureed and strained: Acid milks, albumin fruit juices, albumin water (1 or 2 whites of eggs to a glass of water), almond milk, appleauce, apricots, barley water, lima beans, beef juice, beets, bmax, black coffee, bouillon, butter, buttermilk, carrots, cereal waters, chicken broth, chocolate, clear and cream soups, cocoa, cod liver oil, and cornmeal.

Also cream, cream of wheat, dextrin-palose, eggs (raw), farina, fruit juices, glucose (10 per cent solution), honey, corn syrup, powdered milk lactose (10 to 20 per cent solution), maple syrup, malted milk, cow's or goat's milk, oatmeal gruel, olive oil, orange albumin (1 or 2 whites of eggs with juice of an orange in equal parts of water), nuts, peas, peptone solution (20 to 40 per cent), peptonized milk, plain milk, potato-boiled, sweet or white, prunes, pumpkin, cereals, breakfast food, rice, salt, spinach strained cereals, strained fruits, strained vegetables, sugar, tea—clear, tomato juice, turnip, vegetable soup, whites of eggs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. H. L.—"How may one fumigate to rid a room of cancer germs?"

Answer—There are no cancer germs. Cancer is not contagious.

C. C.—"(1) Is trichomonas an infectious disease? (2) Can it continue over a period of five years? (3) Is it a disease of females only?"

Answer—Trichomonas is an infectious disease due to a small animal parasite. It affects different parts of the body—sometimes the intestine, sometimes the female reproductive tract. It may be very stubborn and can last as long as five years. Intestinal infection occurs both in men and women.

THE BARCLAY CONVENTION

AS SOON as Horace M. Byrnes of Pennsylvania presented his improvement on the Blackwood convention, whereby 4-Clubs became the ace asking call instead of 4-No Trumps, a series of experiments began. It culminated in the development of an extension of the same principle, which its original devotees have now named "The Barclay Convention." In simplest terms, it is merely this: When partners' bidding has clearly agreed upon the declaration, the ace-asking call is the very lowest bid possible which could not possibly have a natural meaning. The responses being on an ascending scale, as in the case of the Blackwood.

South 1 ♦ 2 ♠ 3 ♣ 4 NT 6 ♦
North 1 ♥ 3 ♠ 5 ♣
(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)
Bidding on this deal, by the users of the Blackwood convention, would go thus:

South 1 ♦ 2 ♠ 4 NT 6 ♦
North 1 ♥ 3 ♠ 5 ♣
South could not afford to ask about kings with 5-No Trumps, because a response of 6-Hearts, showing two kings, would automatically force the bidding above

6-Diamonds. Using the new "Barclay Convention," the bidding would be:

South 1 ♦ 2 ♠ 3 ♣ 4 ♥ 7 ♦
North 1 ♥ 3 ♠ 4 ♣ 5 ♣

After the 3-Diamonds guarantee game and shows the fit of the hands, South invites slam with the lowest bid which cannot be misunderstood. Since 3-Hearts might indicate a fit for North's hearts, 3-Spades is the lowest safe slam call. To this, 3-No Trumps would show no aces, 4-Clubs one, so that was bid.

The cheapest next bid, which is not the agreed declaration, is the king asking call. Since 4-Diamonds is the agreed suit, 4-Hearts is the king-asker. North would show none with 4-Spades, one with 4-No Trumps, two with 5-Clubs, three with 5-Diamonds, the last being what he used. South now knows about the grand slam, so bids it without a qualm.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"THE TROUBLE with your idea, Gayle," Bill Bailey was saying, "is that we haven't enough room. Not even this big mansion can accommodate a theater that will seat more than 400. And there wouldn't be time to take out all the seats and then have a dance."

The other girls and Jeremy Tucker sat with them in this conference.

"The Orpheum" theater man wants us to present the play on his stage," Bill went on. "But that's out."

"What we need is something outdoors," Gayle suggested. "It's spring, summer, really. We could have a garden party, couldn't we? And then move the people inside to see the play?"

"Grand!" Tempe Hyde put in. Tempe was given to sudden enthusiasms. "Under the oaks."

Jeremy chimed in.

"Oh, I say—see here, a lot of times, in the ancient days, people did have plays outdoors. In ancient Rome and Greece, and I think in Egypt. And even in the prehistoric civilizations of Mexico, Archeology reveals much that—"

"That iss so!" Lola Montesa said, brightly. "In New Mexico, too, those ancients have been times out doors always. Everything iss outdoors where I wass born, even now."

"I had no idea you were born outdoors, Lola!" Gayle couldn't resist that, but as the others laughed with her she turned to Bill. "Sorry, author, you'll have to write us an outdoor drama."

"Look, I'll do that!" Bill was suddenly earnest. "I mean, I can make 'The Wit to Woo' an outdoor play as well as indoors. Do you suppose we could we arrange a stage out here?"

"Al fresco?" Gayle encouraged.

"Right!" We could make it go, Gayle. Look! Act one might just as well take place in a bower of trees and shrubbery instead of in a campus cloister as I planned it. Yonder in a nook just off the east path—remember the clearing there? It slopes just right for the seats, and there's a flat spot for the acting. We could string lights, and—say, I can whip up a swell setting around the swimming pool, too, I'll bet!"

The conference was on the shady front porch this morning, and Bill leaned to a small table there and spread his script. Gayle sat near his left, Jeremy to his right. In a moment the other girls were standing behind and beside them, crowding close, leaning to read the script again and talk about it.

"At the pool is where the secondary climax can be worked in," Bill was saying. "See, the heroine's sister goes there to be alone and sit on a bench and think, because she thinks her heart is broken. In that quiet mood, she begins humming, and finally singing. Sort of like in an opera, see? She sings of her heartbreak; that'll have to be a slow scene, understand; a lot of pantomime to build up the mood. But the suspense will be growing when writing, you should rewrite it."

One of the other girls interrupted.

"All right, then, the hero sings, too, and maybe he walks out onto the big diving board to do it. Maybe that will be the place for the best effect—we'll have to go see tonight. Then, say, he also gets the urge to go swimming. It can be a slow scene, understand; a lot of pantomime to build up the mood. But the suspense will be growing

ed. "But Lola doesn't have a heartbreak, Beel. She is verree happy."

Everybody laughed a little, and Bill took up the brogue.

"I'll have Jeremee make thee—how you say?—Love—and break her heart before hand. Then she can act convincingly, no es verda?"

Poor Jeremy turned crimson at the suggestion, and at the mass attention suddenly turned on him. Lola's smile had faded; she looked slightly alarmed at the others, until the conference was resumed.

"Anyhow, the sister sings," Bill went on, "and pours out her heart. Maybe we could have a concealed orchestra to back her up there. Anyway, her guitar. But after she sings she is still restless. The night is warm, the water inviting, see? So she decides to go for a lonely swim."

"Because it is midnight and she is alone, she doesn't bother to go back to her room for her swim suit. She just strips and dives in. The water is refreshing. The audience sees her swim back and forth from the dark night shadows at one end through the moonlit waves at the other end—that'll make a grand sequence, won't it?"

"But the hero has heard her singing from afar, and because he is anxious to explain his actions in the earlier scenes he comes seeking her now. He does not know she is in the pool, but he walks through the shrubbery and trees in that direction, softly calling her. When he gets near the pool, she hears. But of course she cannot answer him. Consternation grips her. She dare not even leave the pool to flee. So she just retreats into the dark shadows at the shallow end, with just her nose exposed. She won't even be visible to the audience, but they'll know she is there, see?"

Bill was improvising, gesturing and talking ad lib, staring at all and none of the group around him and writing his play as he talked. He had a definite sense of the dramatic and he even made the telling of it good.

"But the hero," he resumed, "continues to call her. When he comes to the edge of the pool he calls twice more, waits, gets no answer. Then he, too, gripped by the apparent solitude of the place, and in a moody mood of his own, breaks into song—we'll end up making this a light opera if we aren't careful! If I'm to act the hero, I'll get a stand-in. I know some fellows who can really sing, and I'll make one of them do his stuff for me in the bushes, while I open my mouth and go through the motions, see? It'll look real, with just the moonlight on."

Virginia Smith Becomes Robert E. Adkins' Bride

Single Ring Rites
Read In Village Church

Wearing a gown of misty white chiffon, Miss Virginia Smith walked down the aisle of the Methodist Church of Williamsport Saturday to become the bride of Mr. Robert E. Adkins of 126 East Mound Street.

Oregon huckleberry and ferns, highlighted with baskets of lovely white gladioli, made the beautiful background for the impressive single ring ceremony read by the light of many cathedral candles just after 8:30 p. m.

Dr. Rollin H. Walker, Professor Emeritus of Bible at Ohio Wesleyan University, officiated.

Mrs. D. H. Householder of Williamsport played pre-nuptial music during the half hour preceding the ceremony, modulating to the Wedding March (Lohengrin) as the bridal party approached the altar, and using the Mendelssohn march for the recessional. Miss Eleanor Snyder included in her solos "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly" and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," with Miss Abbe Mills Clarke playing her accompaniments.

The bride's gown was finished with a square neckline of Duchesse lace, the same lace banding the fitted waist line from which the full skirt fell to form a long train. Duchess lace fell in cascade effect from the bodice and continued around the train. Her English finger-tip veil was held in place with a dainty wreath of orange blossoms. She wore elbow-length lace mitts, and carried a Colonial bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley centered with an exquisite white orchid.

Beverly Ann Smith, Columbus, niece of the bride, wore a frock of mist blue chiffon, floor-length, patterned after the bride's gown. She wore lace mitts and carried a small flower basket filled with rose petals.

Mrs. James Kendall Bryan of Parkersburg, W. Va., sister of Miss Smith, served as her matron-of-honor. Similar in styling to that of the bride, her frock was of shell pink chiffon. Her lace mitts were of matching shade. She carried a Colonial bouquet of painted daisies, and wore a cluster of dainty pink and blue forget-me-nots in her hair.

Mr. Joseph D. Adkins, Jr., of Watt Street, served as his brother's best man.

The ushers included Mr. Kendall Bryan, Parkersburg, W. Va., Mr. James M. Smith and Mr. R. H. Smith, Columbus, brothers of the bride, and Mr. Linden Baughman of Circleville.

A reception of very simple appointments at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Williamsport followed the ceremony. A profusion of summer flowers in pastel shades decorated the rooms which were candle-lighted for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Joseph W. Adkins, Sr., East Mound Street, mother of the bridegroom, were in the receiving line. The bride's mother wore blue lace with a colonial corsage of Tailsman roses, while Mrs. Adkins' gown of black lace was complemented with white gardenias.

Candles lighted the bride's table centered with a lovely arrangement of flowers in pastel shades on which was placed the beautifully decorated wedding cake.

The hostesses at the reception included Mrs. R. L. Green, Fostoria; Mrs. DeWitt Norris, Zanesville; Mrs. Louise Baer, Miss Louise Junk, Washington C. H.; Mrs. James M. Smith, Mrs. Martha Blackwell, Columbus; Mrs. William Duvall, Ashville; Mrs. Kendall Bryan, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Miss Margaret Dunlap, Miss Laura McGhee, Williamsport; Mrs. Joseph W. Adkins, Jr., Mrs. Melvin Kiger and Miss Margaret Hunsicker, Circleville.

Later in the evening, Mr. Adkins, who is Common Pleas Court bailiff, and his bride, left for a motor trip. Mrs. Adkins wearing an ensemble of black and white with accents of flamingo red for traveling. She used black accessories.

When they return after about two weeks, they will make their home at 126 East Mound Street. The former Miss Smith is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan Uni-

Headed for Summer

ONE HAT won't see you through a season, so why spend hours searching for something to go with everything, only to discover it can't be done? Be a brave woman and get two at least; three hats are more fun and simplify your wardrobe problems no end. It's possible you look as smart in the large headpiece as the close-fitting, and there are occasions when one can't take the place of the other. Today's white straw is chic with twin suits, either soft wools or black and white prints. It has a skull foundation which holds it securely against the breeze. The cotton chignon turban, right, features the most approved manner of covering the back of the head, and hides all but a bit of hair in front. That's an advantage on days we mean to get to the hairdresser's and don't. Think of this kind of casual hat for simple frocks in solid tone now, and for your cotton frocks and linen suits this summer. Earrings are almost compulsory for turbans, though they needn't be lobster.

house received in a navy blue sheer with white accessories, Mrs. Fred Roundhouse Circleville, and Mrs. Charles D. Wade, Chillicothe an aunt of the bride, were assisting hostesses.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Cook will reside in Williamsport when they return after a wedding trip.

Both bride and bridegroom attended Circleville High School. Mr. Cook also attending the high school of Williamsport. He is employed as mechanic for the John H. Dunlap, Jr., Farms.

Birthday Surprise

Marilyn June Valentine, who will be eight Wednesday, June 19, was honored at a surprise birthday dinner Sunday arranged by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Renick Valentine of Pickaway Township. Roses and honeysuckle decorated the home for the affair, a buffet dinner being served at noon by Mrs. Valentine. The table was centered with a large birthday cake topped with eight candles.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Valentine, daughter Mary Jane, son Joe, Mrs. Clara Tobin of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Valentine and daughter, Eloise; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Joseph, Edward Valentine, Dr. and Mrs. V. D. Kerns, daughters Donna Jean and son Harold Eugene, Dudley Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, Mrs. Newton Kerns and Max Johnson of the Circleville community. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright and children and Aaron Brown joined the group for the afternoon and enjoyed the refreshments served by the hostess.

The Bride's Bouquet

The Fashionable Bride's Bouquet this year is composed of flowers in a loosely gathered arrangement, resembling in effect one which the bride herself might have picked in the garden.

This effect is sought even with the costliest flowers, and the somewhat careless appearance conceals the art with which each blossom has been chosen and placed, and the arrangement as a whole has been studied.

A bouquet out of the ordinary is composed of white carnations, the spicy blossoms favored by the grandmothers of present-day brides, which are back in vogue. A bouquet without ribbon show-ers is preferred, though a bride is permitted a few if she insists, but not too many.

A bouquet in this type is appropriate for either a simple home guest last week Miss Bernice Emrick of Wellston. Miss Ferguson left Sunday for Athens where she will attend the summer session at Ohio University.

Mrs. George Bochard and daughter, Carolyn, of Williamsport were Circleville shoppers Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gerber and children of Chillicothe were Saturday visitors in Circleville.

POLITICAL RIVALRIES FLARE

SALT LAKE CITY—The Salt Lake City commission has done nothing about a proposal that donkeys be barred from the streets. The suggestion came from Harry S. Joseph, political leader, when the commission refused to allow the Hogle Gardens zoo elephant to march in a Republican parade. Joseph said he thought it no more than fair to bar donkeys if Princess Alice could not march with her Republican friends, that is, in case the Democrats wish to stage a parade with donkeys.

Even the Faithful Admit Yankees on Down Grade

By Ed Kiely

NEW YORK, June 17—Even the most dyed-in-the-wool fan was forced to admit today that the New York Yankees, probably the greatest collection of baseball might ever to step on the diamond, have started down the hill.

The four times world's champions gave conclusive evidence that they had seen better days yesterday when they dropped a twin bill to the lowly St. Louis Browns, a team they had beaten in seven previous starts this year.

Red Ruffing, who heretofore had only to throw his glove out on the mound and the Browns were beaten, was the victim in the first game, in which St. Louis amassed 13 hits to gain an easy 12 to 6 triumph. In the nightcap, the Browns spotted the Yanks four runs and then came on with a rush in the late innings to win, 6 to 5, on a two-run uprising in the ninth.

Meantime, the other first division clubs in the American League had little trouble subduing the weaker second division outfits. The Boston Red Sox stayed on top in the race by handing the Chicago White Sox a double setback. In the opener, Ted Lyons, Chicago's Sunday pitcher, lost a tough game when Ted Williams clouted a homer in the twelfth stanza to give the league-leaders 4 to 3 decision. In the second fray, Boston pounded out 20 hits, including five homers, for a lopsided 14 to 5 win.

Feller, Milnar Right
Bob Feller and Al Milnar, the ace moundsmen of the rebellious Cleveland Indians, pitched the Tribe to 4 to 2, and 4 to 3 victories, respectively, over the Philadelphia A's and Detroit eliminated the Washington Senators in 8 to 7 fashion.

The Brooklyn Dodgers continued in the saddle in the National League, but only after having their reckless pace halted temporarily by the Cincinnati Reds, who captured a doubleheader with 1 to 0 and 5 to 2 scores.

Whitlow Wyatt lost a heart-breaker in the first game. The rangy rightlander twirled a two-hit contest only to lose in the ninth when Lonnie Frey homered for the only run of the game. The Reds also spoiled Curt Davis' debut in Flatbush, lacing him for five runs in the nightcap.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, with a revised lineup, halted the New York Giants winning streak of eight games by registering 5 to 0 and 5 to 3 triumphs; the St. Louis Cardinals continued on a comeback by whipping the Philadelphia Phillies, 9 to 3 and 3 to 1, and Chicago and Boston split a doubleheader, the Bees taking the first 5 to 4 and the Cubs the nightcap, 9 to 1.

THE HEROES AND THE GOATS

HEROES—Ted Williams, Boston outfielder, whose extra inning homer gave the Red Sox a victory; Joe Grace, St. Louis catcher, whose single tied the score and who later scored the winning run as the Browns came from behind to defeat the Yanks.

GOATS—Auggie Galan, Chicago outfielder, whose error enabled the Boston Bees to beat the Cubs; Lou Fette, Boston pitcher, who blew up in the sixth when the Cubs registered eight runs to beat the Bees in the nightcap.

LEAD OF KASEYS CUT TO SINGLE TILT BY LOSSES

COLUMBUS, June 17—Kansas City's lead in the American Association flag race was cut to one game today as a doubleloss was chalked up against the Blues and a double victory recorded for the Minneapolis Millers.

St. Paul turned in the double win over the league leaders by scores of 7 to 1 and 2 to 1. Minneapolis, meanwhile, was turning back Milwaukee, 14 to 8 and 7 to 4.

Columbus fell out of the first division by dropping two games to Louisville 5 to 3 and 9 to 0. The first game went 13 innings.

In the other twin bill, Toledo whipped Indianapolis, 4 to 2 and 2 to 1.

WASYLIK TO BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS, June 17 — Nick Wasyluk, former Ohio State University football star and athletic director at St. Clairsville for the last two years, has accepted the head football and basketball coaching post at Bucyrus High School, it was announced today.

WALKER BOOKED

COLUMBUS, June 17 — Jack "Buddy" Walker, undefeated Columbus Negro heavyweight, and Jack Wofford, from Texas, meet tonight at Haft's acre in a scheduled 10-round bout. Walker will be seeking his 21st victory and 17th knockout.

REDS JUBILANT AS TURNER AND DERRINGER WIN

Big Paul Cops 1 to 0 Edge As Frey Pumps Homer In Top Of Ninth.

VANDY MAY TAKE HILL

Cincinnati Team Invades Philadelphia Park For Next Series

PHILADELPHIA, June 17—Jubilant reign on the Cincinnati Reds baseball team today as the National League defending champions opposed the Philadelphia Phillies. Cause of all the shouting was the Reds' double victory over the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday by scores of 1 to 0 and 5 to 2.

Before a capacity crowd of 30,000, Paul Derringer hurled six hit shutout ball in the first game. However, the Reds' margin of victory came only in the ninth inning when, with two out, Lonny Frey hit a trick home run. His line drive struck high on the right field wall and, instead of rebounding, dropped on a ledge formed by the wall and stuck there.

Even the Faithful Admit Yankees on Down Grade

By Ed Kieley

NEW YORK, June 17—Even the most dyed-in-the wool fan was forced to admit today that the New York Yankees, probably the greatest collection of baseball might ever to step on the diamond, have started down the hill.

The four times world's champions gave conclusive evidence that they had seen better days yesterday when they dropped a twin bill to the lowly St. Louis Browns, a team they had beaten in seven previous starts this year.

Red Ruffing, who heretofore had only to throw his glove out on the mound and the Browns were beaten, was the victim in the first game, in which St. Louis amassed 13 hits to gain an easy 12 to 6 triumph. In the nightcap, the Browns spotted the Yanks four runs and then came on with a rush in the late innings to win, 6 to 5, on a two-run uprising in the ninth.

Meantime, the other first division clubs in the American League had little trouble subduing the weaker second division outfits. The Boston Red Sox stayed on top in the race by handing the Chicago White Sox a double setback. In the opener, Ted Lyons, Chicago's Sunday pitcher, lost a tough game when Ted Williams clouted a homer in the twelfth stanza to give the league-leaders 4 to 3 decision. In the second fray, Boston pounded out 20 hits, including five homers, for a lopsided 14 to 5 win.

Feller, Milnar Right
Bob Feller and Al Milnar, the ace moundsmen of the rebellious Cleveland Indians, pitched the Tribe to 4 to 2, and 4 to 3 victories, respectively, over the Philadelphia A's and Detroit eliminated the Washington Senators in 8 to 7 fashion.

The Brooklyn Dodgers continued in the saddle in the National League, but only after having their reckless pace halted temporarily by the Cincinnati Reds, who captured a doubleheader with 1 to 0 and 5 to 2 scores.

Whitlow Wyatt lost a heart-breaker in the first game. The rangy right-hander twirled a two-hit contest only to lose in the ninth when Lonnie Frey homered for the only run of the game. The Reds also spoiled Curt Davis' debut in Flatbush, lacing him for five runs in the nightcap.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, with a revised lineup, halted the New York Giants winning streak of eight games by registering 5 to 0 and 5 to 3 triumphs; the St. Louis Cardinals continued on a comeback by whipping the Philadelphia Phillies, 9 to 3 and 3 to 1, and Chicago and Boston split a doubleheader, the Bees taking the first 5 to 4 and the Cubs the nightcap, 9 to 1.

THE HEROES AND THE GOATS
HEROES—Ted Williams, Boston outfielder, whose extra inning homer gave the Red Sox a victory; Joe Grace, St. Louis catcher, whose single tied the score and who later scored the winning run as the Browns came from behind to defeat the Yanks.

GOATS—Augie Galan, Chicago outfielder, whose error enabled the Boston Bees to beat the Cubs; Lou Pette, Boston pitcher, who blew up in the sixth when the Cubs registered eight runs to beat the Bees in the nightcap.

OLD HOLLANDERS LOSE TO SPRINGFIELD NINE
Mike Helfrich's Old Hollanders got a lot of bad baseball out of their system Sunday when they lost their first contest in seven starts, the Springfield National Supply Co. winning 11-7.

The winners, playing on the New Holland field, took advantage of wild pitching and general sloppy play, and with their ability to hit in the clutch ran up a safe margin. The Old Hollanders left 13 men on the base paths.

LEAD OF KASEYS CUT TO SINGLE TILT BY LOSSES

COLUMBUS, June 17—Kansas City's lead in the American Association flag race was cut to one game today as a doubleloss was chalked up against the Blues and a double victory recorded for the Minneapolis Millers.

St. Paul turned in the double win over the league leaders by scores of 7 to 1 and 2 to 1. Minneapolis, meanwhile, was turning back Milwaukee, 14 to 8 and 7 to 4.

Columbus fell out of the first division by dropping two games to Louisville 5 to 3 and 9 to 0. The first game went 11 innings.

In the other twin bill, Toledo whipped Indianapolis, 4 to 2 and 2 to 1.

WASYLIK TO BUCYRUS
BUCYRUS, June 17 — Nick Wasyluk, former Ohio State University football star and athletic director at St. Clairsville for the last two years, has accepted the head football and basketball coaching post at Bucyrus High School, it was announced today.

REDS JUBILANT AS TURNER AND DERRINGER WIN

Big Paul Cops 1 to 0 Edge As Frey Pumps Homer In Top Of Ninth.

VANDY MAY TAKE HILL
Cincinnati Team Invades Philadelphia Park For Next Series

PHILADELPHIA, June 17—Jubilant reigned on the Cincinnati Reds baseball team today as the National League defending champion opposed the Philadelphia Phillies.

Cause of all the shouting was the Reds' double victory over the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday by scores of 1 to 0 and 5 to 2.

Before a capacity crowd of 30,000, Paul Derringer hurled six hit shutout ball in the first game.

However, the Reds' margin of victory came only in the ninth inning when, with two out, Lonny Frey hit a trick home run. His line drive struck high on the right field wall and, instead of rebounding, dropped on a ledge formed by the wall and stuck there.

Frey's homer was only the second hit the Reds got off Whitlow Wyatt. Ernie Lombardi had scratched out an infield single in the fifth frame. It was Derringer's ninth win of the season.

In the nightcap, old Jim Turner scattered eight Dodger hits as his mates collected 10 off the deliveries of Curt Davis, newly acquired by the Dodgers from St. Louis.

Werber, Frank McCormick and Turner himself led the Red attack with two safeties each.

The victory cut the Brooklyn lead to 14 percentage points. The Reds and Dodgers are tied in the number of games won and lost.

Johnny Vander Meer, of no-hit fame, was to hurl against the Phils today.

JOE MUST KAYO GODOY TO WIPE STIGMA ASIDE

By Lawton Carver
GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y., June 17—Joe Louis is punching as hard as ever, he is boxing as smooth as oil flowing over plate glass and he is mean in a smouldering sort of way as he looks ahead to Thursday night and defense of the world heavyweight championship against Arturo Godoy. Briefly, Louis has whipped himself into shape to avenge the stigma of letting Godoy—a puncheon ham-and-egger—go 15 rounds in their previous meeting last February.

Weighing 200 pounds and seemingly keen, Louis is mentally and physically in as good shape as he ever has been, and the outcome of this fight is going to be interesting to contemplate even if the fight itself is as bad as the previous one.

Louis and his handlers agreed here at his camp that he is ready now, ready to really get in there and heave leather in retaliation for the humiliation visited on him by Godoy in their last meeting when Louis was made to look extremely bad. If Louis doesn't win this one by a knockout the answer is (2) Louis isn't the terror he used to be or (2) Godoy is the toughest guy currently in the ring. The fight may present the answer.

The point is, Louis, as he looks here in training, should be able to hit Godoy often and hard. Even under wraps the Bomber quite obviously is ready and key up. If he does then throw his punches in there, and nothing happens, the conclusion must be that he isn't the man he used to be or Godoy is strictly unhurttable.

NEED FOR CHRISTIAN LEADERS STRESSED AT COUNTY YOUTH CONFERENCE

150 TAKE PART IN OUTSTANDING SESSION SUNDAY

President Of Otterbein College On Program At Banquet

OFFICERS ARE NAMED

Pherson Methodist And Circleville U. B. Have Best Attendances

"Shall the world be safe tomorrow unless it heeds the efforts of Christian groups like yours today?" Dr. J. Ruskin Howe, president of Otterbein College, asked members of the Pickaway County Youth's Conference Sunday evening at the Presbyterian Church. Congratulating the conference on its past programs he referred to its work as "a saving power in civilization." Dr. Howe stressed the present need for young Christian leaders in a world of turmoil, and urged that, to prepare for such a world, they choose one main goal in life and then press forward toward it, broadening their talents as they go along.

Dr. Howe's address followed a 6 o'clock supper meeting for youth and youth leaders. More than 150 persons attended the evening session of the conference, which council officials reported the best in recent years.

Special music for the evening, directed by Elizabeth Reber, included three selections by a male quartet comprised of James Moody, Hopewell M. E. Church; Ernest Winterhoff, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, and Everett Beers and Hugh Lamb, Hedges Chapel; a violin solo by Metta May Hickman, Hedges Chapel, and a vocal solo by Charles Dresbach, Williamsport.

A one act play was presented by the Forum of the Indiana Methodist Church, Columbus.

Officers elected for next year's Pickaway County Youth Conference include Lawrence Ater, Williamsport, president; Wayne Hines, Ashville, vice-president; Miss Rosemary Boggs, Circleville, secretary; and Montford Kirkwood, Circleville, treasurer.

Only one change was made in the officers of the Pickaway County Council of Religious Education when Mrs. W. D. Ramsey replaced Mrs. E. S. Shane as superintendent of the children's division. Additions to the executive committee include the Rev. O. W. Smith, Ren Mummaw, the Rev. Frank Batterson, the Rev. W. D. Ramsey and O. W. Miller.

Officers of the County Council include E. S. Neuding, president; George D. McDowell, Ashville, vice-president; G. P. Hunsicker, Williamsport, secretary, and G. F. Grand-Girard, treasurer.

A resolution was passed by the council urging that Pickaway County send a representative to a State Youth Conference in Columbus in the fall.

County banners for attendance at the conference were awarded during the afternoon session to the Pherson Methodist Church, which reported 19 members present, and the Circleville United Brethren Church with 14.

DEFECT IN SPRINKLER SYSTEM BRINGS FIREMEN

Circleville firemen were called to Goeller's broom factory at 1:50 Monday morning when a defective sprinkler system tripped, ringing a fire going outside the factory and prompting an unknown person to call the fire department. Water from the sprinklers caused no damage, firemen reported.

CARS HIT AT CORNER

The automobile of John Pringle, Louisville, Georgia, ran into the rear of a car driven by J. W. Lower, Columbus, Sunday afternoon at Main and Scioto Streets. The accident happened as Lower, going west on Main Street, stopped for the red light at Scioto, and Pringle who was following him was unable to stop. Patrolman Elmer Merriman said. Pringle agreed to pay Lower $5 damages.

WHY not profit by the mistakes of others, and have adequate insurance when that unexpected accident occurs?

G. O. P. Big-Wigs Putting 'No' Stamp On Willkie

WASHINGTON, June 17—Taft, Dewey or a dark horse, but never Willkie.

This, in brief is how G.O.P. congressional leaders today forecast the outcome of the Philadelphia convention, meeting next Monday to choose a Republican presidential nominee for the 1940 race.

Congressional Republicans frankly confess that they are unable to definitely predict the nominee, even though the convention assembles within a week. Conservatives and liberals, easterners and westerners alike declare that the nominating proceedings will be "wide open and free for all."

Eleven names are certain to be submitted to the convention. The list includes Sen. Robert A. Taft (Ohio); Thomas E. Dewey (New York); Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (Mich.); Sen. Styles Bridges (N. H.); Gov. Arthur H. James (Pa.); Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin (Conn.); Publisher Frank A. Gannett, of New York; Hanford McNider, of Iowa; Sen. Arthur Capper (Kas.); Sen. Charles L. McNary (Ore.); and Utility Executive Wendell Willkie, of New York.

Bricker "Darkhorse"

Five other names will hover over the convention in the dark horse class, although not submitted in public convention. They are former President Herbert Hoover; Rep. Joseph W. Martin (Mass.), G.O.P. leader of the house; Governor John W. Bricker (Ohio); Supreme Court Justice Harlan F. Stone, of New York, and Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, of Pennsylvania. Nearly all congressional Republicans predict that their 1940 nominee will be one of these 16 men. A typical congressional attitude toward the Philadelphia outcome is that of Rep. Leo Allen, of Illinois, who says:

"The outlook is very uncertain. For the first time in my experience, no one or two possibilities has a cinch on the nomination. I don't think any one man has a lead on the others. It looks like a free for all and may the best man win."

"Fortunately, the Republicans have a wealth of outstanding candidates this year. It may be Taft or Dewey or it may be some dark horse. Personally, I feel that if the convention deadlocks, the nominee will be Joe Martin."

One strong bloc of capitol hill Republicans believe that the ticket will be Taft and Dewey or Dewey and Taft. They base their belief on the fact that these two possibilities are expected to have more than a majority of delegates and that eventually they will get together to capture both positions on the ticket.

This bloc, along with others, believe that if Taft and Dewey fail to get together, the nominee will be a dark horse. At this point,

600 DRIVERS OF TRUCKS STRIKE IN CAPITAL CITY

COLUMBUS, June 17—Their negotiations with employers regarding a five-cent-an-hour pay boost at a stalemate, 600 drivers of heavy trucks in the state capital went on strike today despite government efforts to avert it.

The drivers are employees of 40 different firms and are members of Truck Drivers' Union local 413, A. F. of L. affiliate. Affected are truck loaders, checkers and drivers of local cartage companies and city delivery men of common carriers.

The union members are demanding that a 5-cent-an-hour increase should be for one year. Employers want the increase in effect for two years.

U. S. Labor Conciliator Hugh D. Friel conferred with representatives of both groups yesterday but was unable to break the stalemate.

BOYS AT LEGION 'STATE' TO PICK THEIR OFFICERS

COLUMBUS, June 17—Seven hundred and seventy delegates to the annual "Boy's state" at the Ohio State Fairgrounds today were to cast ballots to select a governor and other officials.

Candidates for the state offices were selected yesterday. Running for Governor are William Reimer, of Wadsworth, and Ted Davis, of Middletown, heading the "Nationalist" and "Federalist" tickets respectively.

After state officers are selected today, delegates will settle down for a week of law-making, budget-balancing and settling of "other" problems.

Other candidates on the Nationalist ticket are: Lieutenant governor, James Kilbane, Cleveland; Secretary of State, Kenneth E. Edmiston, South Charleston; Treasurer, Richard Howell, Alliance; Auditor, Richard Ailes, Benton; Attorney General, Wilton Nichols, Cleveland.

COLUMBUS VOTE ON CHANGES IN CHARTER NEARS

COLUMBUS, June 17—The campaign for and against the proposed six-mill city charter amendment came to a close today as Columbus voters prepared to go to the polls in a special election tomorrow to have the final say on the proposal.

Election officials predicted a light vote of between 35,000 and 45,000. Polls open at 6:30 a. m. and close at 6:30 p. m.

Opponents to the six-mill charter amendment, which is backed by Mayor Floyd Green, have argued that no additional operating revenue is needed. Mayor Green has said that if the plan is not approved so-called "nuisance" taxes will be necessary to get the city "out of the red."

NLRB AMENDMENTS

Passage by the House of the Smith amendments scuttling the National Labor Relations Board was a sham battle. The bill hasn't any more chance of getting through the Senate than a snowball in Death Valley.

If the House had passed the moderate amendments sponsored by Mrs. Mary Norton, chairman of the Labor Committee, there would have been a fair likelihood of the Senate Labor Committee considering them. But the drastic Smith bill is poison to a majority of this committee—which is among the most liberal on Capitol Hill.

Also playing an important role in the committee's hostility was AFL President Green's somersault on the amendments. When introduced in March, he scathingly denounced them as a "destructive blow at vital fundamental principles." But in the midst of the House fight he reversed himself and came out for the amendment if revised in a few minor details.

Green's standing with the Senate committee never was weighty, and his maneuver on the Smith bill didn't help. Privately, committee members express indignation at his flip-flop.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

One reason why Mussolini struck at the time he did was the strategy of cutting off French retreat to Africa.
